INLAND WATER SYSTEM WINS HOOVER FAVOR

Next President Thinks Nation Must Prepare for Boost in Population

HAS MANY ADVANTAGES Sees System as Help to Farm as Well as Balancer for Industry

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

(This is the third of a series of 12 dispatches, David Lawrence gives an outline of the policy of the Hoover administration concerning inland waterways. In succeeding dispatches he will discuss other topics, sketching the bases of action in the new administration.)

Washington—It may be a coincidence that the development of inland waterways comes to its crucial test at a time when an engineer has been elected president of the United States. But it is not a coincidence that Herbert Hoover has taken into his bosom the entire project of the great Mississippi system of inland waterway transportation.

More than four years ago Mr. Hoover began to advocate the intensive development of inland streams. He predicted that the United States must provide for an increase of forty millions of population within the next quarter century and that with the trunk line of railway must be built or waterways deepened; he pointed out that to duplicate the Mississippi system of inland transportation by building extra railroad facilities would cost three times as much as to complete the waterways.

"Nor is this," says Mr. Hoover, "in any wise a statement that our railways must not be under constant development, for the obviously represent scores of millions of people who are untouched by the waterways and they perform many services that our waterways cannot undertake."

WILL ACT AS BALANCE

Mr. Hoover's idea is that the inland transportation system will not only mean cheaper rates for the carrying of goods, and especially farm products, to the Gulf of Mexico, but to the seaboard, that it will mean a better distribution of the population and a better balance in the location of industry than has been possible heretofore. He thinks that the overgrowth of cities has presented social problems that may be cured by the distribution of inland banks of the deepened waterways.

"With the deepening of channels," remarks Mr. Hoover, "there has been a coordinate improvement of different types of traffic, over ten times the carrying capacity of the shallow predecessor. Diesel engines, improved steam appliances and better loading and discharging devices, have all advanced us a long distance from the

TACNA-ARICA DISPUTE ENDS WITH TREATY

Agreement Gives Tacna to Peru and Arica Province to Chile

Santiago, Chile—(AP)—The Tacna-Arica boundary dispute, born in war and thriving through 45 years on international strife, has been settled by peaceful means.

Official announcement here Thursday says that an agreement has been reached between the governments of Peru and Chile, the two countries involved, by which the province of Tacna goes to Peru and that of Arica to Chile.

The boundary between the two provinces is fixed slightly north of the railroad leading from the port of Arica to La Paz, Bolivia. This railroad, of the utmost importance to Bolivia since it is her sole outlet to the Pacific, remains in Chilean territory until it crosses the Bolivian frontier.

The railroad from Tacna to Arica will be in Peruvian control, while a spur which is to be constructed at Arica connecting the two lines will be under Chilean control.

The agreement is the result of diplomatic negotiations undertaken just four months ago.

BEGAN IN 1879

The Tacna-Arica dispute has its birth in 1879 when Chile occupied the two provinces in the course of a war with Peru and Bolivia. The treaty of 1884, provided that the conflict remain in Chilean control for 10 years when a plebiscite would be undertaken to determine their future state.

Peru maintained the Chilean government attempted unfair nationalization of the two provinces and the plebiscite was not held, the argument between the two countries continuing furiously for more than 26 years. War was often threatened, the nature of the conflict being such that it might have involved nearly all of South America.

In January 1922 the United States government offered its good offices. President Harding became arbiter in July, 1922. He was succeeded by President Coolidge who in 1925 handed down a decision which upheld the necessity of a plebiscite, fixed the northern boundary of Tacna, and provided for a boundary commission to decide the southern Tacna boundary, or that which borders on Arica. Since then a social boundary commission has been at work.

10 Burn To Death In 2 Home Fires

Pittsburg—(AP)—Ten persons members of two families, burned to death in fires which destroyed their homes in western Pennsylvania early Thursday. At Ebensburg, Mrs. Leo Mangold and her five children perished, and at Hillsboro, Mrs. Zenas Berkeley and her three children died.

The five Mangold children ranged in age from eight months to six years. The three Berkeley children were aged six weeks and three and four years. Both fires apparently were caused by overheated stoves.

The only two other occupants of the Mangold dwelling were Mr. Mangold and his brother Donald who occupied sleeping quarters on the first floor. Both escaped uninjured.

In the Hillsboro blaze, Zenas Berkeley, lone survivor of the family, suffered severe burns about the face and hands.

The Mangold fire was discovered by miners on their way to work. They broke into the house and aroused Mangold and his brother, but the blaze had gained such headway that rescue of the mother and five children on the second floor of the dwelling was impossible.

One of the miners succeeded in fighting his way to Mrs. Mangold's bedroom but the woman, her nightgown on fire, pushed him away and struggled to the side of a sleeping child, where she perished.

At Hillsboro, Mrs. Berkeley, who was nursing her six week old baby, smelled smoke and awakened her husband. Going to the kitchen, he discovered the room aflame. Becoming panic stricken, Berkeley dashed through the flames to the outdoors, where he collapsed in the snow and was unconscious while his wife and children burned to death.

ATTEMPT TO PUSH ACTION IS BLOCKED

Effort to Force Consideration of 3 Measures Halted by 18 to 15 Vote

Madison—(AP)—Conservative senators Thursday blocked an attempt of Progressives to force immediate consideration of three measures providing for investigation of all election campaign expenditures since 1924. By a vote of 18 to 15, the senate defeated a motion by Senator Walter Hunt, Progressive, to withdraw the Prescott resolution from the committee. The Prescott resolution already has passed the investigation.

With the opening of the senate session, A. M. Miller, Progressive, asked the unanimous consent to withdraw the Prescott resolution from the committee. The Prescott resolution already has passed the investigation.

Unanimous consent was refused by Senator H. B. Daggett, Conservative, chairman of the committee on corporations and taxation. Senator Hunt then moved that the resolution be withdrawn from committee.

At request of Senator William H. Markham, Conservative, Hunt included in his motion the Markham measure and the Fellenz bill. Senator George W. Blanchard, Conservative, opposed the motion as did Senator Walter S. Goodland, another Conservative. However, on the roll call, Senator Goodland joined with the Progressives in seeking to bring measures before the senate, as did a few other Conservatives and the two Socialist members. The roll call:

For withdrawal—Carroll, Cashman, Duncan, Gettleman, Goodland, Hunt, Keppel, A. M. Miller, Polakowski, Roberts, Rush, Schumann, Severance, P. J. Smith, Teasdale—Ayes, 15.

Against withdrawal—Barker, Blanchard, Boldt, Caldwell, Casperson, Daggett, Fellenz, Hall, Hutchison, Johnson, Markham, McElhannon, Morris, Mueller, Roethe, Shearer, H. H. Smith, White—Noes, 18.

ASK APPROPRIATION TO HELP NEEDY INDIANS

Ashland—(AP)—A resolution asking for a state appropriation to meet the immediate needs of indigent Indians on the Ojibwa reservation "who in many instances are actually starving to death" was adopted by the Ashland board late Wednesday.

The board also asked legislation for future aid for the Indians who are living on tribal and untaxable lands of the reservation near here. The Indians are being cared for by the town of Sanborn with funds fast becoming inadequate.

The board was told that there have been appeals to the federal government but no aid. The law does not permit the county to make an appropriation to a town.

New Revolt Breaks Out In Shantung

Shanghai—(AP)—Reliable information at Dairen, Liaotung (Japanese territory) Thursday said that Chang Chung-Chang, war lord and former military governor of Shantung, left that city Wednesday for Chefoo, Shantung, center of anti-Nanking maneuvering.

Chang Chung-Chang was one of the most powerful of the old northern war lords. A series of reverses last summer preceded his flight to Fort Arthur and later, it is believed, to Dairen. Nationalist troops were never able to capture him.

U. S. Light Cruiser Is Ordered to Proceed to Scene of Uprising

Manila—(AP)—The light cruiser Trenton left Manila Thursday under orders to proceed to Chefoo, as the result of a reported uprising in Shantung. The Trenton is due at Chefoo Monday morning.

Reports from Chefoo ten days ago said that 3,000 former Peking (northern alliance) soldiers who had been mustered into the Nationalist army had revolted at Lungkow, Shantung. There was fear then that the mutiny would spread to other towns and garrisons.

Later reports indicated that this may have happened said that a battle was imminent west of Chefoo between loyal nationalists and rebels. Missionary women were evacuated from several towns in the affected area, although men remained at their posts.

REVEAL PLANS FOR FEDERAL BUILDING HERE

Architect Shows That Government Plans Other Offices Here

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS

Washington, D. C.—Plans for Appleton's new postoffice which was recently recommended to congress by President Coolidge, for which an appropriation of $25,000 to start construction of the building during this year is now pending before the house, were revealed Thursday in the report of James A. Wetmore, supervising architect of the Treasury department.

According to his plans, the building is to consist mainly of a basement and one floor with a partial second floor, having a ground area of approximately 10,735 square feet. The building will be entirely modern and of fireproof construction, brick faced and stone-trimmed.

In his report to the appropriation committee of the house favoring the authorization of the building of the new postoffice at Appleton, Wetmore pointed out that the population of the city had increased from 19,561 in 1920 to approximately 25,000 in 1928, with an increase in postal receipts over the past ten year period of 110 per cent. The receipts for 1918 were $84,688 and for 1928, $177,822.

OTHER OFFICES

The proposed building will provide 9,100 square feet of floor space for the postoffice, 2,288 square feet for the civil service, agriculture, internal revenue, war and prohibition departmental activities.

Wetmore also pointed out that the present estimates have been based on figures which will allow for at least 10 years growth. The sale price of the present building is estimated at $50,000, he told the committee.

The deficiency bill now before the lower house increases the total estimate for the Appleton postoffice from $250,000 to $260,000 and provides for an immediate appropriation of $25,000. It is believed the $25,000 is for the purpose of acquiring a site.

PROPOSED SUM IS OMITTED IN NEW MEASURE

But Indiana Man Is Authorized to Offer Amendment for $2,727,917

INCLUDE OTHER ITEMS Report on New Deficiency Bill Is Blow to Measure Approved by Senate

BULLETIN

Washington—(AP)—The house agriculture committee would be authorized to hold hearings between the end of the present session of congress and the start of the special session to work out a farm relief bill under a proposal incorporated in the second deficiency bill reported Thursday to the house.

Washington—(AP)—After the house appropriations committee had submitted a new deficiency bill Thursday omitting the proposed $24,000,000 additional for prohibition enforcement, it authorized Representative Wood, Republican, Indiana, to offer an amendment on the house floor to provide $2,727,917 for prohibition.

That sum was recommended by President Coolidge after the treasury had estimated it could use $2,500,000 more at this time. The amount would be allocated as follows:

Department of Justice, $150,000; prohibition bureau $1,719,569; customs bureau $707,860; civil service commission $150,000.

The recommendation reached the committee too late to be included in the deficiency bill and the committee therefore authorized its acting chairman to offer the amendment when the house begins consideration of the measure.

REST IS APPROVED

Every other item in the first bill, now lying dormant in the senate since the house refused to accept the increased prohibition fund, is incorporated in the new measure, which would provide $191,599,000 for emergency uses of government departments. One of the largest items is the $75,000,000 for tax refunds.

The total includes $11,155,000 for public buildings, $2,150,000 more than was recommended in the proposal submitted to congress a week ago by President Coolidge. The increase is to take care of additional projects. The only reference in the measure to prohibition enforcement is an item of $589,000 for salary increases in the prohibition bureau.

THREE SECTIONS

The new bill is divided into three sections, the first covering $78,677,229 of emergency appropriations recommended by the president. The second would provide $17,299,000 for salary increases for federal employees under the Welch act and the third, $95,622,000, represents the items that are the first deficiency measure.

The tax refund item is the largest single one carried in the measure. Among other large items are $19,000,000 for army and navy pensions, $15,000,000 for railroad transportation and messenger service in the postoffice department, $3,539,000 for general expenses of the marine corps, $3,250,000 for purchase of new airplanes for the army air corps, $2,344,152 for salary increases in the veterans' bureau and $7,130,000 for Porto Rican hurricane relief.

KEYES PREPARING TO APPEAL FROM SENTENCE

Los Angeles—(AP)—Asa Keyes, former district attorney of Los Angeles, Thursday fell back upon his second line of defense, an appeal to a higher court in his fight to escape a sentence of one to fourteen years in San Quentin penitentiary.

Keyes and Ed Rosenberg, one of his co-defendants in the recent bribery-conspiracy trial here, were sentenced Wednesday by Superior Judge Edward T. Butler after a motion for a new trial had been denied.

Ben Getzoff, Los Angeles tailor whose bonds some $140,000 was alleged to have passed to Keyes from defendants in cases prosecuted by the former district attorney, was not sentenced.

Keyes and Rosenberg were denied bail and returned to jail after they had given notice of appeal. The former district attorney showed no emotion as sentence was pronounced. He declared he had "just begun the fight" in his effort to keep out of the "big house" on the shores of San Francisco Bay.

BYRD MAPS OUT NEW TERRITORY FOR U. S.

Names Area in Honor of His Wife and Claims It for His Country

New York—(AP)—The New York Times, St. Louis Post-Dispatch and other northern newspapers announced Thursday that Commander Richard E. Byrd, in an extensive airplane flight made with two planes on Monday last, discovered and mapped in part a vast new territory in the Antarctic which he has claimed for the United States and has named for his wife, Marie Byrd Land.

Commander Byrd has also discovered a second new mountain range, east and south of the first discovered by him recently, and named it Rockefeller range. That range is within territory claimed by the British and known as the Ross dependency.

The new range discovered on Monday is larger than the first and contains peaks between eight and ten thousand feet high. It is outside the limit of the British claims and is in the new Marie Byrd Land, which lies between Ross sea and Graham Land.

About 40,000 square miles of antarctica have now been explored from the air by the Byrd expedition. In the last flight the Rockefeller range was mapped by aero camera. The entire new section was sketched and the uncharted coastline east of the bay of Whales was mapped by Captain Ashley McKinley of the army air service, who was in the second of the two airplanes that made the flight.

HOOVER HAS CONFABS WITH PARTY LEADERS

Washington—(AP)—Having ascertained the views of President Coolidge on many of the government problems which will confront him when he assumes the presidency on March 4, President-Elect Hoover Thursday sought the opinion of a number of party leaders in congress.

Senator Edge of New Jersey, was invited by Mr. Hoover to breakfast. Vice President-Elect Curtis had accepted an invitation to luncheon with his running mate on the Republican ticket. A number of other callers had arranged to visit Mr. Hoover during the day.

LOCAL AUTHORITIES ARE SCORED BY DRY CHIEF

New Haven, Conn.—(AP)—Speaking at Yale university Wednesday night, James M. Moran, prohibition commissioner, placed much of the blame for unsatisfactory conditions as regards prohibition in some communities to "the abject failure of local authority to assume its proper obligation and enforce the criminal law."

The commissioner also declared that the term "poison alcohol" as applied to industrial alcohol was unwarranted and that there was no evidence that deaths recently occurring in New York city from wood alcohol were caused by industrial alcohol in the form in which it was denatured under government supervision.

He said that the movement on the part of some local authorities to evade their responsibilities took form as soon as the prohibition act became law and that in some cities corrupt political machines, through the police department, "made an unholy alliance with the underworld and contributed in no small degree to the building of illicit liquor rings."

NEED PROTECTION

Washington—(AP)—American Consul Leroy Weber has advised the state department that the situation at Chefoo was such as to make American naval protection necessary.

State department officials said, however, that they felt there was no immediate danger to Americans because of the presence in the harbor of four Japanese and two British warships.

The disturbance appears to be centered on the east end of the Shantung peninsula with former Peking soldiers and brigades under two generals trying to execute an uprising movement with Fushan, about 10 miles west of Chefoo, as the immediate objective of the advancing forces.

5 CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH IN ILLINOIS

Chicago—(AP)—Fire, started when a pot of boiling lard caught fire, cost the lives of five children of Mr. and Mrs. John Ooms of Lansing, Ill. A six-year child and the parents, were recovering from serious burns received in the fire late Wednesday night. The bungalow home of the Ooms was destroyed. Flames from the ignited lard set fire to curtains and the fire was beyond control before members of the family realized what had happened.

JUDGE HARDY MUST FACE SOLON COURT

Impeachment Trial Voted 57 to 18 in McPherson Kidnapping Case

Sacramento, Calif.—(AP)—Having voted to impeach Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy of Los Angeles, charges of committing misdemeanors in office in connection with his activities in behalf of Almie Semple McPherson, evangelist, the California assembly was expected to make plans Thursday for conducting his trial.

The assembly voted 57 to 18 to impeach the jurist Wednesday after receiving the recommendations of its committee which investigated Hardy's acceptance of $2,500 from McPherson while her kidnapping story was under investigation by the Los Angeles district attorney's office.

Appointment of a board of managers to prosecute Judge Hardy before the bar of the state senate was the order of business in the lower house. Meanwhile the state was expected to receive the notice of its impeachment and prepare for the trial.

KENOSHA WOMAN GETS DEATH THREAT IN NOTE

Kenosha—(AP)—Police protection was asked by Mrs. John Travanty Wednesday after she turned over a letter to archbishop which demanded that $4,000 be placed in a corner of a cemetery under threat of death. It was the fourth letter of this nature she has received in the past six months. Each came three days in advance to comply with the request.

No information as to the source of the letters was available. On the night of Feb. 12 a small powder bomb exploded under Mrs. Travanty's bedroom window. She said that a bomb was one of the threats offered in the letter, which was written in Italian and postmarked Kenosha.

Mrs. Travanty has purchased a pistol and has announced that she will stand guard to prevent more bombs. Her husband is out of work and she has two daughters, aged 5 and 8.

HOLDS GAS TAX BOOST WOULD NOT RAISE PRICE

Madison—(AP)—A 2-cent increase in the gasoline tax would be absorbed by the gasoline industry and would mean no additional expense to consumers, Senator Robert Caldwell of Lodi, asserted in explaining his bill providing for a 4-cent state gas tax before the senate highways committee Wednesday afternoon.

The gasoline industry, to prevent a drop in consumption resulting from the higher price, would adjust its retail rate to fit the tax without increasing the total price to the motorist, Senator Caldwell believed.

Stewart Letter Appeals For Reelection To Post

Chicago—(AP)—Stockholders of the Standard Oil company of Indiana who on March 7 will decide whether Col. Robert W. Stewart is to continue as chairman of the board, have been mailed a new appeal for reelection by Colonel Stewart.

The letter charges spokesmen of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. with a "campaign of misrepresentation" in their effort to remove Colonel Stewart from control. It expresses the hope that the control between the younger Rockefeller and himself be kept on a high plane. "It was my understanding that such, too, was the hope and intention of Mr. Rockefeller," the letter continued.

"Then Mr. Rockefeller sailed for Egypt," Colonel Stewart wrote in the letters which went into the mails Wednesday night. "Mr. Aldrich (Winthrop W. Aldrich, brother-in-law and attorney for Mr. Rockefeller) and Mr. Ivy Lee apparently did not understand the matter he did."

"After saying he would embark on no 'unseemly scramble for proxies' he surely must be without his knowledge or consent that others in his name have embarked upon a campaign of misrepresentation; that they, in a very wild scramble for

SET ASIDE VERDICT AGAINST DUKE ESTATE

Philadelphia—(AP)—The United States circuit court of appeals today set aside the $2,000,000 verdict against the estate of the late Duke of Windsor, which was returned by the jury in the federal court here last week.

The verdict was set aside by Judge H. H. Ladd, president of the United States circuit court of appeals for the third circuit, which covers Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

The court found that the verdict was based on a "rule of law" which was not applicable to the facts of the case.

REPARATIONS GROUP WORKS ON PROBLEMS

Paris—(AP)—The expert committee on reparations stood adjourned Thursday while a sub-committee of the committee thrashed out its problems in a preliminary session.

The sub-committee was headed by a Frenchman and was expected to report back in plenary session Friday.

The success of the conference, it is felt, depends largely upon the work the sub-committee is undertaking. The standpoints of the various delegations, are very far apart.

The machinery of the conference, which the sub-committee is working out, will lay a base for harmonious reconciliation of the various viewpoints, on failing, delay and retard the work of the experts.

Madrid—(AP)—El Sol prints a dispatch from Olmedo, Valladolid, reporting the birth of quintuplets, two boys and three girls, to a woman there, Sofia Hernandez Molpeceres. The five babies died shortly after birth.

Dr. Isidoro Villa, professor of obstetrics in the University of Valladolid, referring to the case, says "quintuplets are extremely rare and that the case is possibly the first in Spain. The average of such he said, is once in about forty million."

Order County Referendum On Snow Removal Next Year

BOARD VOTES $15,000 MORE FOR THIS YEAR

Supervisors Adopt Report Tabulating Highway Oil Purchases

The responsibility for snow removal in Outagamie county after this winter was passed back to the voters by the Outagamie county board of supervisors at the closing meeting of the February session Thursday morning after they voted $15,000 more to complete the job of opening highways this year.

The supervisors by unanimous vote and after only a very brief discussion adopted a resolution presented by the highway commission calling for a referendum on snow removal at the election next April.

"If the people of Outagamie county want the snow removed we'll remove it for them but if they don't want it removed we won't give what they don't want," Supervisor E. R. Appleton, Oneida, chairman of the highway commission, told the board. The resolution to vote $15,000 more for snow removal this year, making the total appropriation $40,000, was adopted with only Supervisor Nichols and Sawall voting against it. Just before the vote the board was told by Oscar Schmieg, assistant district attorney, that the county would be liable for any damage because the roads are not open for travel.

Supervisor August Laabs, pointed out that there wasn't any question about the county being lax in opening roads. Further criticism, however, he said, would not get back the money that had already been spent and he urged that before any snow removal be attempted next year that a definite program be mapped out in advance.

The expected discussion over the highway committee's detailed statement concerning grease and oil purchased for county highway equipment did not materialize and the board adopted the report without dissent. The report merely showed that the highway department purchased grease and oil aggregating about $6,122.25 but did not state how much of it was used or how much was on hand at the beginning or the end of the year. The report was a routine affair which carried little enlightenment for the board members and they did not appear to be particularly interested except for one or two members.

No action will be taken on removal of end walls from culverts on Outagamie county highways until after the April session, it was decided except that the county highway commission was instructed to level three or four endwalls so they can determine a fair price and decide how they want the end walls finished. It was explained that bids for removing the walls have been received and several members of the highway board were for going ahead with the work now but the board decided to wait until after the April session.

Two resolutions, both by Supervisor Laabs, aimed at the fee offices in the county were adopted by the board, but not without reluctance. The first resolution requires the district attorney to advise the board whether the county is required to furnish stamps and stationery for fee offices and the second requires the district attorney to advise the board the legal fees that may be charged by the register of deeds. These resolutions were adopted after the board adopted a resolution paying bills for stationery and stamps required by some of these officers.

Discussion of snow removal revealed that with some bills still unpaid about $30,000 has been spent for the work this winter and more than 100 miles of county road still are unopened. The $15,000 additional appropriation is to be used on these highways. Supervisor Laabs estimated that the county spent $33 a mile so far to open its road.

The building and grounds committee authorized to investigate the need for more firearms for the sheriff's department and to purchase them, if necessary.

The resignation of Dr. C. D. Boyd, of Kaukauna, as a member of the board of sanatorium trustees, was laid over until the April session.

An opinion submitted to the board by Oscar J. Schmieg, assistant district attorney, stated a person drawing pay as a county employee cannot be a member of the board of trustees. Dr. Boyd is the sanatorium physician and also a trustee.

Supervisor T. H. Ryan urged the board to lay Dr. Boyd's resignation over until the April session as recognition of his unselfish services to the county.

After some discussion on the proposed increase in the state tax from 2 to 4 cents to provide for a 5,000-mile hard road system, the board went on record as being opposed to the plan.

CROWDED CONDITION AT COURTHOUSE IS IMPRESSED ON BOARD

Outagamie county supervisors were again impressed with the need for more room at the courthouse when they were forced to meet in crowded quarters in the municipal courtroom Wednesday afternoon.

The circuit court room, where the regular sessions are held, was in use. Spectators had crowded the county court room listening to a case in progress there and the jam had become so bad that it was necessary to transfer the case to the circuit court room so that the crowds could be accommodated.

At the same time, with the supervisors packing the municipal court room, the municipal judge was forced to attend to court matters in his little private office.

People who came to the courthouse to listen to the discussion on snow removal were forced to stand in the doorway of the municipal court room because there was no room inside. A knot of spectators gathered about the door and even though they talked in the lowest of whispers they disturbed the supervisors in session within.

At the November, 1928, session the board was forced to hold a session in the municipal court room under the same circumstances.

Boy problems were discussed at a meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Leadership Training class held in conjunction with a dinner at the association building Wednesday evening. Four Pioneer clubs have been organized and it is expected more clubs will be planned within the next few weeks, according to C. C. Bailey, boys' work secretary.

Those present at the dinner meeting are Lyle Stevenson, Ray Monteth, O. W. Bauer, Paul Miller, Harold Eads, Howard Ruth, John Shoemaker, Leigh Hooley, Harry Hansen and Mr. Bailey.

old canal boats and the packet boat. But the fundamental use of these appliances is that we shall have sufficient and reliable depths of water to make them possible of use. Without such depths our rivers are not waterways, they are drainage channels."

The United States has already expended nearly $100,000,000 upon the new program which means three great trunk lines of water transportation. Our system north and south, 1,500 miles, from New Orleans through St. Louis to Chicago and by the Great Lakes to Canada; another east and west, 1,600 miles, from Pittsburgh through St. Louis to Kansas City; and the third, a waterway through the St. Lawrence, connecting Duluth and all the lake ports with the sea. Vital to this system is, of course, the improvement of the upper Mississippi connecting Minneapolis and St. Paul with upper Missouri and work on the Cumberland, the Tennessee, the Arkansas and the Red rivers—this entire system comprising 12,000 miles of transporting connection 20 states with the Gulf of Mexico and with the Atlantic Ocean.

WILL HELP FARMER
The theory is that lower transportation rates will increase the returns on his own crops and will also make it possible for him to buy other products more cheaply. Mr. Hoover believes that the inland waterways system is an essential part of his agricultural program, and as such, will have the aid of the members of Congress for the middle west. He does not anticipate the opposition of the railroads, because he believes that this will offset the necessity of rate reduction on the part of the roads themselves and will give the railroads new forms of transportation which will occupy them amply.

With the increase of population in sections of the country untouched by waterways, the volume of freight is expected to increase. But it is true, contends Mr. Hoover, that while the gas engine has built highways and has multiplied traffic ten thousand fold, nevertheless the total volume of freight on the railroads never has been as great as it has in the automobile age.

STATE EMPLOYE HALE AND HEARTY ON 90TH BIRTHDAY

Madison—(P)—One of the state's oldest employees, Frank Higgins, stationery clerk in the superintendent of public property office, celebrates his 90th birthday Thursday.

He was appointed to the clerkship during the administration of Gov. Robert M. LaFollette, when Higgins was 65 years.

A farm boy, he left that vocation to attend Pennsylvania academy and become a teacher among the Pennsylvania Dutch. Then the Civil War changed his course in life and he came to Wisconsin in 1864. He continued his school teaching at Argyle, Sen. LaFollette was one of his pupils. Annually, now, a school picnic is given in LaFayette county in his honor. The Frank Higgins alumni association is named for him.

ASK FUND TO PROBE DISEASE OF BARLEY

Washington—(P)—A threat by European purchasers of American barley, especially those in Germany, to bring damage suits against domestic sellers on the ground that recent shipments were diseased, has prompted the agriculture department to ask congress for an appropriation of $38,280 to carry on an investigation.

Appearing before a house appropriations sub-committee, Dr. A. F. Woods, the department's director of scientific work, said American growers export 30,000,000 bushels of barley to Europe each year for feeding and brewing purposes. Recent complaints, he testified, were that hogs would not eat this season's No. 2 grade because of a scab disease.

Dr. Woods said the scab disease is causing heavy losses all over Ohio, Indiana, southern Michigan, southern Wisconsin, southern Minnesota, Illinois, and Iowa, and that the fund requested would be used to find out what could be done with the present diseased crop.

distinct is challenged by the greatness of the Mississippi project and this alone would keep it close to his heart even if it were not for the pressure for a solution of the agricultural problem too.

5 BADGER COLLEGES ENTER ORATORICAL CONTEST TONIGHT

Annual State Meet This Year Is Under Sponsorship of Lawrence College

Five Wisconsin colleges will be represented in the annual state oratorical and extempore speaking contest at Peabody hall Thursday evening. The contest is sponsored this year by Lawrence college.

Arthur Mueller, Wausau, will take the platform for Lawrence in the oratorical division. Competing with him will be Christofferson of Ripon, Lomas of Carroll, and orators from Beloit and Milton. Christofferson won second place in the state contest last year and the same honor in the national. Lomas is a veteran debater.

The Viking extempore speakers have not been chosen as yet, but Ripon will be represented by John Dix and Clifford Fritz.

The orators will have prepared speeches, but the extempore speakers who will draw for their subjects one hour before the contest, will have only that hour to prepare a ten minute talk.

Winning contestants will compete in the interstate meeting to be held at the college in Illinois which wins that state's contest. From there the winner will enter the national meeting at Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill.

Last year Lawrence won first place in the extempore contest, and in 1926 William Verhage of Lawrence took first in the oratorical contest.

CLAIM MIAMI FIGHT WILL BE BROADCAST

Believe Dempsey Will Weaken and Put Sharkey-Stribling Mix on Air

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association.

New York—This correspondent is in a position to state, on reliable information, that shortly before the Sharkey-Stribling fight at Miami Beach, a week from Wednesday, Jack Dempsey will back-track on his thrice announced intention of prohibiting the National broadcasting of the fight—and the fight will be broadcast.

While officials of the National Broadcasting company here say that Dempsey has positively and defiantly forbidden the broadcast and that they can do nothing but stand on his decision, fight fans and radio fans may be assured that they will get the customary round-by-round version with all the trimmings.

It is definitely learned from close-in Dempsey sources that Mr. Dempsey's heart will soften, with the bulk of the tickets sold, in sufficient time for the radio pick-up crews to make the necessary set-ups.

In Miami, recently, this correspondent was informed that under no conditions would the Sharkey-Stribling fight be broadcast. This sounded like a serviceable plug for the fight and there was no hint that the big hearted management would yield to the importunities of the broadcasters, after the tickets were sold.

Mr. Dempsey, it is here predicted, will take back those harsh words about broadcasting.

JUDGE DISMISSES CALVERT LITIGATION

Appleton Is Winner in Suit to Recover $25,000 Damages

Reversing a former opinion, Judge F. A. Geiger, of federal court for the eastern district of Wisconsin has dismissed the case of Mrs. Lucinda Calvert against the city of Appleton, for $25,000 damages as the result of injuries received in a fall on the sidewalk in front of the Pettibone-Peabody company store. The case was dismissed because suit had not been filed within the period required by law.

Dismissal of the suit is believed to be the final step in the legal action in which the city has been involved for several years. When suit first was brought Judge Edgar V. Werner in circuit court overruled a demurrer filed by Alfred C. Bosser, city attorney. The case then was ten to the state supreme court which sustained the demurrer and dismissed the case.

In the meantime Mrs. Calvert moved from the state and her attorneys took the case into federal court. Judge Geiger overruled the city's demurrer but at the request of Mr. Bosser reopened the case. Mr. Bosser's contention was the judge had failed to take proper cognizance of the time limitation. The new brief filed by the city attorney noted numerous cases to prove the point and the judge reversed his former opinion.

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

FARMER, CITY MAN ARE BUSINESSMEN, KIWANIS TOLD

Farm Paper Representative Makes Plea for More Industries

Differences between farmers and business men are more misunderstandings. Appleton Kiwanians were told at their regular weekly meeting Wednesday night at the Conway hotel. The speaker was Leon H. Robbins of the Wisconsin Agriculturist, Racine, and to prove his contention he pointed out that the farmer and city business man are business men in a final analysis, both with articles for sale and both purchasers. Members of Outagamie county board of supervisors who were guests of the Kiwanians heard the address.

Taking his cue from the publicity given Florida and California, Mr. Robbins asked the Kiwanians and members of the county board to boast their own district and their own state. He recalled that 70 percent of the state's dairy products are sold outside of the state a condition which while satisfactory is not the best. Manufacturing industries should be brought here he stated until such time as the people living in Wisconsin cities and villages purchase the entire output of the state's farms.

Western Wisconsin does not boast the manufacturing cities of the eastern part of state, Mr. Robbins stated, and as a result western farm bankruptcies are numerous. In the eastern section where manufacturing has been centered, farmers sell to the cities and few farmers have gone into bankruptcy. When the condition in the western half of the state is the same as in the eastern section, he declared, all farm industry will be prosperous.

The speaker also talked of Wisconsin taxes, and of the St. Lawrence waterway. He told of speaking to New York businessmen recently who were highly interested in the state because of its unlimited farm facilities, a means of supplying the laborers in industry. But until such time as manufacturing companies come to this state farm products must be shipped elsewhere at a minimum freight rate, which can best be accomplished by development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway which will make lake ports inland seas ports.

Farmers should be taxed on their ability to pay Mr. Robbins said.

There are many farmers with 40 acre plots paying well who can better afford to pay taxes than their neighbor who owns a 160 acre tract and who can not make it pay. Ability to pay taxes is the only sound method of taxation, Mr. Robbins believed.

TREASURER WON'T BE OIL INSPECTOR

Defeat Bill to Put Inspection
Bureau in Treasurer's Office

Madison (P)—The state oil inspector's department will not be consolidated with the treasury under a bill by Assemblyman John F. Frank of Langlade, the Assembly having indefinitely postponed the measure twice. But there are other consolidation measures before it was indicated that an effort will be made later to give the treasury the duty of inspecting oils.

The assembly killed the bill finally, when on reconsidering the vote by which it was first indefinitely postponed, no assemblyman was able to present figures on the specific amount of saving its sponsors said it would affect.

Assemblyman Wallace Ingalls told the lower house it would save "several thousand dollars" and Grandin of Forest county approved the measure in another speech, urging that the assembly follow the campaign cry of economy in government.

Assemblyman Nelson, of Douglas, however, reported that as chairman of the state affairs committee he had witnessed all but three members of that group vote against the bill, and raised the question of the specific amount of saving.

The final vote on the indefinite postponement was 43 to 44.

NEED $3,300 MORE TO REACH GOAL IN SCOUT CAMPAIGN

One Day Left to Raise Half of Money Needed to Carry on Work

With a little less than half their aim of $6,600 realized, valley council boy scout financial campaign workers set out Thursday morning to "clean up" $3,300, so that by Thursday evening when the campaign ends at a report dinner at the Conway hotel, the goal will be reached. Approximately $3,262 was collected from 160 subscribers, it was reported at a dinner meeting at the Conway hotel, Wednesday evening. At the end of the campaign last year, $3,693 had been subscribed.

George Werner's team is still leading in the campaign and Wednesday his workers secured 55 subscriptions and $146. John Trautman's team collected the most money, having secured 21 subscriptions, totaling $221. Robert Connelly's team secured 15 subscriptions valued at $104; Homer Bowby's team, 11 subscriptions valued at $94.50; William Buchanan, 13 subscriptions valued at $127; P. N. Belanger's team, 10 valued at $90; Carl Sherry's team, 13 valued at $57; E. E. Cahall's, 3 subscriptions and $16; George Johnson, 7 subscriptions valued at $33, and Chris Mullen's team, 9 subscriptions and $44.50. The executive board team solicited $323.

Charles Wilkner of Troop 8 of the First Congregational church gave a short talk on the purpose of scout tests following the dinner at the Conway hotel, Wednesday evening. He told about the duties of tender foot, second and first class scouts. A talk also was given by George Packard, general chairman of the campaign.

MAIL CARRIERS KNOW TRUE TEST OF FRIENDSHIP

The true test of friendship, vow the rural mail carriers, is the depth of snow from the road to the mailbox.

"We can tell who our friends are now," one postman remarked sagely. "If our patrons shovel a path to the mailbox or erect a temporary box so we don't have to tramp in snow up to our hips, they're our friends."

According to the postmen, most farmers along the blocked highways have made it possible for the postmen to drop mail without wading through the snowdrifts, although there are a number who are not getting their mail because they have neglected to provide a temporary mailbox or a shoveled path.

MICHIGAN REGULARS ELATED BY TRIUMPH

Opposition Faction Fails to Accept Administration Challenge to Fight

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—The complete failure of the Barnard-McKelghan organization to accept the administration challenge to fight in Wednesday's Republican state convention caused elation in the "regular" party ranks Thursday. The regular state was swept into nomination with scarcely a protest. Administration leaders took the attitude that Edward N. Barnard, Wayne-co whip, had materially weakened his hold, not only in his own county but in Genesee. They contended his followers were deeply disappointed. At the party convention at Detroit last fall Barnard threatened to fight, but it ended by the nomination of the entire party slate. He repeated this year but instead of nominating administration candidates, he attempted to put an administration adherent into the field as a substitute for himself to oppose Howard C. Lawrence. Governor Green's secretary, for the chairmanship of the state central committee. The delegates under the Barnard banner, it was claimed, will not be led again to the brink of a combat with possibly political spoils in the offering for the winner. Members of the Wayne and Genesee delegations, themselves, appeared to hold similar views. A number of them declared that Barnard would have been in a much stronger position had he gone to the floor with his promised fight and had been defeated. Barnard stated after the convention that a number of angles decided him against pitting himself against Lawrence for the chairmanship. He hinted at "railroading" by the convention machinery. There were reports also that some members of the Genesee delegation, insisted he place a candidate other than himself against Lawrence or they would bolt the faction.

KILAUEA CONTINUES TO POUR OUT FLAME

Volcano Provides Spectacle for Hundreds of Visitors in Hawaii

Hilo, Hawaii—(AP)—Kilauea, largest of Vulcan's slowly cooling forces was belching flame Thursday from its crater Halemaumau, "pit of everlasting fire," and providing a spectacle for hundreds of visitors here during the height of Hawaii's social season.

From Subterranean depths lava and fire burst forth, hurling jets of flame 250 to 300 feet into the air. The disturbance started about 4:30 Tuesday morning. At first two fountains spouted upward from the pit, which is 5,500 feet across and 1,250 feet deep. Within two hours the activity had increased until scores of fire streams spread in long cracks across the bottom of the lava pit and broke through crevices in the crater.

The watchman at Volcano house nearby was the first to note the display. With a bugle he signaled the people that an eruption had begun. They gathered in throngs to see the biggest show the islands afford. Wednesday night the spouting fire illuminated Mauna Loa, a mountain towering 13,675 feet above the sea a few miles west and north of Kilauea, making, with its tropic setting, a scene of grandeur.

This is the first sizeable eruption of Kilauea since 1924 when it broke out abruptly and poured forth lava and hurled out rocks, ashes and smoke. The present eruption was not expected as there had been earthquakes within the pit recently. Scientists observing the eruption feel no uneasiness.

MUCH ARGUMENT ON SHEARER BILL

Kenosha Citizens Appear at Hearing on Grand Jury Fund Proposal

Madison—(AP)—The senate committee on judiciary spent nearly two hours Wednesday hearing citizens of Kenosha present arguments for and against Senator Conrad Shearer's bill in which would enable Kenosha to conduct a grand jury investigation into recent disorders there. His bill would permit counties of less than 250,000 with cities of the second class to spend more money for grand jury investigations than is now permitted by the statutes. The present law limits such expenditures to from $200 to $1,000. The committee made no recommendations on the bill, delaying its vote for further consideration.

Senator Shearer and those favoring the bill declared that disorders in Kenosha had grown to such an extent that a grand jury investigation would be necessary to determine who was responsible for them. Attorney General Reynolds and Mr. Baker, as well as others who opposed the measure, declared the present law enforcing machinery to be sufficient to handle the situation.

Attorney General Reynolds said "the people favoring this bill want to permit the employment to informers, gummens and detectives, and the placing of such unregistered detectives in factories." There are on the statute books now sufficient laws to cover the situation, Mr. Reynolds said.

AMERICA IN WORLD COURT

President Coolidge has reopened the question of American adherence to the world court. In identical notes delivered to the Washington diplomatic representatives of the world court nations' Secretary of State Kellogg invites the interested governments to reconsider their earlier rejection of the senate reservations. The chief obstacle to acceptance of American adherence is our reservation number five, which, among other things, states that the world court shall not "without the consent of the United States entertain any request for an advisory opinion touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest." A majority of the court powers have signified their willingness to accept the other four reservations and suggested further conferences to smooth out the differences over number five. Secretary Kellogg now asks the interested nations to suggest views informally in an effort to work out a new formula which would be acceptable to this country.

This move on the part of the state department is coincident with the sailing of Elihu Root to Europe to participate in a conference of jurists at Geneva for revising the world court statute. Mr. Root was one of the founders of the world court and took part in framing its constitution. He is unreservedly for American adherence. So is Charles E. Hughes who goes to sit on it as one of the presiding judges. These two men are without question the leading American statesmen of the present generation. It ought to be comparatively simple to reach an agreement regarding advisory opinions that will be satisfactory all around. When this is done there can be no possible objection to American entrance into the court by even the most fanatical of our isolationists.

Mr. Root says the world court has proved itself to be indispensable. Its business already has grown almost to the limit of the court's capacity. It has disposed of many international controversies, some of which might have led to disastrous war. It has come to occupy a full fledged place in international relations and in the conservation of world peace.

We belittle ourselves as a nation by remaining aloof from this distinguished and useful tribunal. Mr. Coolidge must, after all, keenly feel the implied reflection that rests upon his administration for not being able to bring about American adherence to the court, to make this eleventh hour effort in its behalf. We cannot continue to stultify ourselves much longer in a policy that is without rhyme or reason.

SETTLING THE WAR DEBTS

The conference of the experts on reparations is proceeding orderly and hopefully. Germany has submitted its case for a reduction of the standard annuity of $625,000,000 annually, which she is paying in full this year for the first time. She hopes to cut it at least one-third. France, on the other hand, will do all she can to persuade the conferees that the annuity should remain as it is, but it is believed that she would be willing to accept an annuity somewhat in excess of $500,000,000. The ablest men in the fields of finance, economy and politics the allies could summon are seeking to adjust the problem of reparations, which includes along with the amount of the annuity the period in which it is to be paid, in a spirit of honest purpose to find out the true facts and deal justly with them. The Dawes plan left the fixing of the period in which payments are to be made to future settlement, and that is the primary reason why the experts commission has assembled.

It seems inevitable that no decision can be reached without taking into consideration the allied war debts to the United States. Officially these debts are not before the commission, but as a matter of fact they must exercise an influence upon its deliberations. Whatever period of reparations payments is finally fixed, the allied governments will naturally wish to readjust their debt payments to a period approximately the same. They will certainly desire a revision if there is a wide difference between the periods of the two obligations.

The most important work of the commission will be to determine Germany's capacity to pay. This will involve clearing up the so-called prosperity index set up by the Dawes plan. It will be difficult for any of the participants to mislead the others. It would seem that Germany is prepared to lay the cards on the table without attempt at concealment and accept a decision based upon actualities. We have great confidence in the ability of the commission to sift the facts and get at real conditions. They are men not easily deceived and not easily influenced by sentiment. If their work is successful, as the world expects it to be, it will be a notable contribution to international understanding and peace. It will mark what ought to be a permanent rapprochement between France and Germany. It will terminate the objectionable occupation of the Rhineland. It will remove causes of suspicion, irritation and antagonism. Certainly no better commission could be created. Divergent as the parties themselves may be at the opening of the conference, there are the best of reasons for believing that before it is finished their views will be harmonized.

THE KING CAN DO NO WRONG

In Wisconsin a so-called but badly misnamed Progressive is supposed to be ordained with special political privileges. His mental operations are laws unto themselves, which no one is supposed to fathom or challenge. He may cast a vote or commit an act that no rational mind can understand, but it must be accepted as wise and benign. He can be guilty of every inconsistency and every violation of ethics and justice, and still not be chargeable with inconsistency, on the ground that an end justifies the use of any means. He can violate or evade election law with impunity, but no one else can. Whether the end is rational or worthy while must not be considered. It is glorified by Progressive dictum.

Senator Blaine cast his vote against the Kellogg treaty renouncing war. He was the only man in the United States senate to do so. According to the Progressive primer Mr. Blaine is not accountable for this act to his constituents. It does not even require an explanation. It is to be taken for granted that he is right and the rest of the nation wrong, that his reasons for voting against this great peace measure, however fantastic and impossible they may be, are not to be questioned. The rank and file of the Progressives are supposed to swallow the act and approve it. To think or reason for themselves is gross heresy.

Consequently when the women of Wisconsin take Mr. Blaine to task for his incomprehensible vote on the Kellogg treaty, he sends them a flippant reply. Instead of making a dignified explanation of his vote and treating them with the respect that is obviously their due, he twits them for not having had representatives in the senate galleries when the cruiser bill was under consideration. There is not even a tone of common courtesy in his letter. He is a law unto himself. Anything that he does or says, however weird, cynical, inexplicable or subversive of reason or right, becomes immediately orthodox Progressive practice and principle. To challenge it is proof of some mysterious connection with the exploiting forces of the world, out to "do" the common man. Accordingly, Mr. Blaine's extraordinary vote against the Kellogg treaty becomes a perfect vote, for the simple reason that Mr. Blaine styles himself a Progressive. Could anything be more absurd and insane?

DEATH FOR DYNAMITERS

A Missouri legislator has introduced a bill providing the death penalty for the bomber and dynamiter. In former years this was an almost unknown type of crime. The use of the "racket," however, has made it commonplace. It is a particularly vicious act, as it often takes the lives of innocent people. In addition, it is a crime that is often very hard to trace to the perpetrator, who can be miles away when the explosion takes place. Any law that will put fear into the heart of the bomber is to be praised. Here, however, as in the other cases, it is possible that what is needed is not so much stiffer penalties as a tightening up of police and court procedure that will make punishment for speedy and more certain.

Since the explosion of Buddhism by the Yi dynasty in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, the Korean people have been accustomed to the use of meat as an article of diet.

Views Of The News

THE THIN RANKS

Veterans of the Civil War are rapidly diminishing in numbers. In a very few years there will not be left one man who can actually remember the incidents of that terrible struggle.

The Department of the Interior has revealed that the pension roll of Civil War veterans has shrunk to 68,788—6,000 lower than it was six months ago, thus indicating that the veterans are dying at the rate of more than 1,000 a month.

At that rate, in six years the last of the veterans will be gone. Much the same rate of mortality, probably, applies to the Confederate veterans. Of course, there will be a few exceptions—tough, hardy men of unusual longevity, who will linger on for years after their comrades have gone.

But the ranks are thinning fast. It is a tragedy. The gallant old fighters, north and south, served well and bravely. The country will be much poorer when none of them survives.

WHERE COLLEGE STUDENTS COME FROM
What class of the population provides the largest proportion of college students?

Statistics recently gathered at the University of Illinois reveal a partial answer to this question. Of the 11,000,000 students there, 7,150 are sons and daughters of business men. Oddly enough, the next largest division of parents is that classified as skilled and unskilled laborers; 2,061 students come from such parents. Farmers rank third with 1,766, and the professions, with 1,719, are fourth.

Incidentally, half of the students come from cities of 25,000 or over. Chicago alone contributes more than 3,900.

These figures are extremely interesting. They give a valuable light on the backgrounds of the young men and women who are being trained for leadership.

Rapid development of motor transport has much improved the distributive system available to South Africa agriculturists.

WHAT, MORE OXYGEN?

TRY AND GET IT.

An earnest reader administers a good scolding in referring to my assertion that deep breathing exercise is a silly business. The monitor elucidates as follows:

"We are taught to believe that the blood is purified by the action of the oxygen in the air on the blood as it is pumped through the lungs. If you knew anything about the subject you would know that by breathing more deeply we draw more air into the lungs, expanding them more completely and getting more action on the blood."

There is no getting around the critic's logic, and I should be the last to question his physiology. Everything he says in the paragraph quoted is absolutely true. But, like many a good story, just as we reach the really interesting point the story comes to an abrupt stop.

Suppose one wished to jump over a 10 foot wall. If one has on good strong boots, what could be simpler than just grasping the bootstraps and giving a mighty heave, thus lifting oneself over the wall at the cost of a comparatively small effort.

If my friend really believes he can get more oxygen and more action on the blood by deep breathing, I wish he would try it for an hour and report how he feels, if at all, at the end of the experiment.

Even if he has his favorite fysical culture at hand to encourage him, he will find, if he is a fairly normal individual, that he can keep up the deep breathing for only a few minutes at the longest. After a few minutes of conscious deep breathing there comes an interval in which there will be no breathing at all, or only slow shallow respirations; if one persists for a time in spite of the absence of the natural impulse or stimulus to breathe, there follows partial loss of consciousness so that one simply forgets to breathe at all for a minute or more. This is due to the fact that by the conscious deep breathing the blood has been saturated with oxygen, and the percentage or quota of carbon dioxide normally present in the blood has been reduced below the normal threshold. In this state there is no natural impulse or stimulus to breathing, and one just doesn't breathe. Presently, after a minute or longer, according to the degree of exhaustion to which the forced breathing has been pushed, the percentage of oxygen in the blood is reduced, thru the utilization of the oxygen in metabolism, oxidation, and the carbon dioxide quota is again restored to something like the normal, and then the natural impulse or stimulus to breathing is again operative, and one resumes breathing where one left off.

It is practically, if not literally, true that one resumes precisely where one left off, so far as one's absorption of oxygen is concerned. The additional EXERCISE involved in conscious deep breathing is scarcely sufficient to consider. EXERCISE, however, is the only practical way in which one can absorb and utilize more oxygen. As for the breathing, forget it. Get your exercise and have the breathing, and the oxygen absorption to take care of itself for it will anyway, no matter what you read in the magazines about it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Easy With the Conditions, Girls
My wife salts and peppers her meals and eats excessively. Is this harmful in any way? She thinks not. I think it is and we await your decision. (H. N.)

Answer—I hope I am responding in time to prevent tragedy. Excessive consumption of salt tends to produce fatness, pallor, salivary complaint, physical and mental indigestion. Excessive use of pepper and other hot condiments causes digestive trouble, and often kidney trouble. An occasional indulgence in such things may be harmless, but regular or habitual excess is devastating to health and beauty.

Snuff Taking
What bad effects has the chewing of Copenhagen snuff on the human body? I have used it for nine years, not heavily, but I know it does affect my appetite. I do not smoke, and chew no other kind of tobacco. Just the same I would like your opinion about it, and if you think it hurts a man to use this snuff, here is where I quit. (E. J.)

Answer—The snuffing of snuff has the same general effects as chewing or smoking tobacco. The chewing of snuff is equivalent to chewing other forms of tobacco. Snuff taking, in the old manner, is comparatively harmless. Chewing tobacco entitles a man to his place in the pig pen. Chemical tests of numerous brands of snuff showed that some of them contain lead from the foil the snuff is wrapped in. I believe Copenhagen snuff was found heavily contaminated with lead. If you want my opinion, chewing snuff does hurt a man—get yourself a flock of pipes and smoke like a gentleman. A man's mother, sister, daughter, or wife is entitled to some consideration.

Be Yourself
Can you give advice to a man 38 years old who weighs 170 pounds and is 5 feet 2 inches tall, in good health, but would like to weigh less, without in any way injuring his health? (T. C. T.)

Answer—I might, if he cares to write to me.

Hernia
Is there such a thing as navel rupture after an appendix operation? What type of hernia may develop if one over exerts and how do we know if we have one? (E. S.)

Answer—Yes. Your physician will tell you.

GIVE THE WOMEN A CHANCE.

Editor, Post-Crescent: In Saturday's (Feb. 16) Post-Crescent I read with much interest what another taxpayer said about a lady deputy highway commissioner riding a tractor and directing snow removal around Wausau. Just another case where a woman made good. Everywhere in the country in the good old summer time you see women handling large tractors and farm machinery of every description and believe me they know their machinery, and I'm here to say that if some of the women of this county were put on as road commissioners or on town boards they would make the men sit up and take notice, and they will also vote "no" if the co-

New York—Manhattan snapshots: Subway straphanger absorbed in book on bee farming. . . . And a checker game under way in a barber shop, even as in Sorghum Flats. . . . A last year's baseball scoreboard seems to me the height of something or other. . . . Perhaps futility.

Along Fourteenth Street, which is one of the most conglomerate thoroughfares linking the East Side with the West, have grown a healthy and expanding group of department stores.

They are quite unlike any other stores in town, in many respects and their trade is drawn from the peoples of every land, thousands of whom have never learned to speak English. Employees belong to a dozen nationalities and are called in as interpreters upon occasions.

There is a certain store in this district where no salesgirls are retained. A customer picks an article from a rack which carries the price. The store stands ready to take back the garment if the sale tag and price are intact. Furthermore, if two shoppers get together over the back fence and find that one purchased a garment for less money than the other, a refund will be given. One store advertised that the police and fire departments had to be called to the street was roped off for hours.

SEEK TO INCREASE NATIONAL FOREST AREA IN WISCONSIN

Hope to Amend Law to Permit Inclusion of Larger Badger Acreage

Rhineland—(P)—Northern Wisconsin lumbermen who favored the establishment of National Forests on some of Wisconsin's tax-delinquent land are driving now toward enlargement of the area in these forests.

L. A. Maier, formerly of the Outdoor Club of Wisconsin and now with the land department of a lumber company here, announced Tuesday that those interested in the national forests will seek amendment of the law whereby the state enabled the federal government to buy 500,000 acres, to include a larger acreage.

The interested parties will seek complete removal of the limit or a sizeable increase.

Mr. Maier also announced that a campaign educating northern Badger residents to the "benefit of such a forest" will be carried by the lumber companies and others.

He explained that Wisconsin never before has had a National Forest, "while Minnesota and Michigan, and many other states were included in the Rocky Mountain national forest district for some time," headquarters of this district were at Denver.

The three north-central states have now been placed in a new district and Earl W. Tinker, assistant forester for the Rocky Mountain district, has been assigned to temporary headquarters in the United States Forest Products Laboratory, Madison.

There are to be three forest units in Wisconsin: The Moccasin unit in Bayfield county, the Flambeau unit in Price county, and what until now has been known as the Oneida unit, being parts of Vilas, Oneida and Forest counties, but what has been tentatively named the Argonne National Forest. "What is the one in which people of North-eastern Wisconsin are mostly concerned, in view of the fact that there are within this area several private and state-owned stands of virgin timber."

The private owners, with the assistance and guidance of the new district forester and his staff hope to place their holdings upon a sustained yield basis, looking toward successive cuts of timber from the same land, and thus assuring a continuous supply of raw material for Wisconsin's wood-using industries.

PREPARE FOR FIRES

Back of the educational work will be the protective organizations built up at each forest. Establishment of look-out towers, intensive patrol during season of high fire hazard, distribution of emergency fire-fighting equipment, organization of fire-fighting crews, and construction of roads, trails and telephone lines to make the forest easy of access and communication, are parts of the northern program, Maier said. "Keep Wisconsin Green" would be a good slogan to adopt by citizens of this state.

"The forest service will promote the recreational facilities of the National Forest, by building roads and making the forest easy of access to tourists and citizens. The forest service does not plan on acquiring lake frontage within the forest area. That will be left in private ownership. The public, and that includes the tourist, in making free use of the lands to be owned by the government, will be subject to the fish and game laws of the State of Wisconsin," Maier said.

"There is a keen realization that the abundant wild-life resources can be replaced only by persistent co-operative effort. Private fish and game clubs; some national in scope, the Wisconsin conservation department and local game wardens, and the various federal bureaus are stressing earnestly the restocking of wood-land with game and the lakes with fish. There is a long driven home to the local people that the indiscriminate hunting, illegal trapping, and forest fires means the elimination of game that the annual burning of woods destroys the nests of game birds and also hastens erosion along stream banks to the detriment of trout and other fish.

"Therefore, the invasion of the Federal government into Wisconsin, with its experienced foresters, augurs well for vastly improved conditions in the north."

SEEK TEST ON RULING OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Madison—(P)—A test of whether the attorney general must grant the request of individual legislators for a legal opinion is to be made soon.

Assemblyman E. W. Cords, Jr., informed the committee on banking and insurance that a request he made of the attorney general for an opinion on the constitutionality of a bill was refused on the ground that individual legislators are not entitled to such opinions.

Frank L. Prescott, Milwaukee, chairman of the committee, instructed Cords to repeat his request, and "if they don't give it to you, we'll find out why."

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, yellow skin, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results. Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 50c, and $1.00.

OPEN AIR SCHOOLS ARE PROVING WORTH

Show That Academic Progress Can Accompany Physical Development

Madison—(P)—Proof of the theory that academic progress can accompany physical development is claimed by nine larger Wisconsin schools that have established open-air rooms for weak, undernourished and pre-tubercular children.

The report of the state department of public health bureau of public health nursing, just published, showing progress since 1909, when the first school of this type was established at Green Bay, shows the open-air school rooms are maintained in that city, Kenosha, LaCrosse, Madison, Marinette, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Racine and Sheboygan.

The first teacher in the Green Bay open-air school was Miss Tracy Copp later on the staff of the industrial commission and now with the federal rehabilitation board.

Children are admitted after a physician's examinations and are supervised by teacher and nurse. Lunches are served and unusually a full meal is provided at noon. Some cities require that defects be corrected and some provide transportation. Following up work is done by school nurses.

Madison, Oshkosh, and Sheboygan also continue the building-up process by supporting summer camps, known as preventorium camps, for about six or eight weeks. After a few months of this training, according to Miss Cornelia va Kooy, director of the public health nursing bureau, a large proportion of the children have the appearance of complete recovery from their ailments while others show distinct improvement. Added weight, color, appetite and strength, and larger immunity to colds and contagious diseases are usually charted to the credit of nearly all enrolled. Careful records are kept daily for each child.

The Inaugural Pageant

FROM WASHINGTON TO HOOVER

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES, 1877-'81
By Alexander R. George
(Associated Press Feature Writer)
Washington—(P)—Sitting Bull was on the warpath, Ole Bull was winning America with the magic of his violin, and Gould was the terror of Wall Street when Rutherford B. Hayes of Ohio succeeded Grant as President of the United States.

The inauguration of Hayes followed the most famous election contest in the nation's history. The electoral commission appointed by congress to decide whether Hayes or Tilden had been elected did not report until March 2. As March 4 fell on Sunday, Hayes took the precaution of being privately sworn in at the White House on Saturday and took the oath of office publicly at the formal inauguration Monday.

The President-elect rode with General Grant in the latter's four-horse team from the executive mansion to the Capitol, the marine band playing "Darling, I am Growing Old," while Donch's band was sending forth the "sweet strains" of "Little Sweetheart, Come and Kiss Me."

Mrs. Hayes wore dark clothes, a light spring coat and dark gloves. Mrs. Hayes, who had a seat in the senate gallery, wore a black velvet bonnet trimmed with white silk, with a white rose in front and pink roses at the back. Completing the adornment of her head was a black lace veil and around her neck was a white lace scarf. A camel's hair shawl reposed in her lap.

When the President and Mrs. Hayes took up their residence at the White House, they found it profusely decorated with flowers. One gift to the President was a huge eagle made entirely of flowers. The head was formed of violets, the body of 1,500 pinkies, and the wings, tail and stand of flowers of many kinds and colors.

The Hayes and Wheeler Club of Baltimore, composed of 30 negro men uniformed in caps, red shirts and black trousers, arrived too late to enter the inaugural procession and staged a small parade of their own.

Blaine's speeches were drawing crowds to the senate galleries and an item in a Washington paper said:

"Joseph Miller, the poet of the Sierras, says Washington is the handsomest city he ever saw, and that he is so pleased with it that he intends to take up a permanent residence here."

The serving of liquor at state dinner was abolished during the Hayes occupancy of the White House. At the conclusion of his administration, Hayes made the following statement:

"When I became President I was fully convinced that whatever might be the case in other countries and with other people, in our climate and with the excitable nervous temperament of our people, the habitual use of intoxicating drinks was not safe. It seemed to me that to exclude liquors from the White House would be wise and useful as an example and would be approved by good people generally. The suggestion was particularly agreeable to Mrs. Hayes. She has been a total abstemious woman from childhood."

There were five Hayes children, and it was a family "simple in its tastes and cordially united in its members." A contemporary describes the President as "a most affectionate father, and a day seldom passes that he does not devote some time to games with the younger children."

"He is an exceedingly busy man, rising early and working late. He frequently walks in the morning, and rides for a time before dinner, and thus much exercise in the open air maintains his strength for the long siege of each day's listening to countless applicants."

PROGRAM PLANNED FOR RECREATION INSTITUTE

A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, is preparing the program for the second recreational institute for teachers of Outagamie county rural schools, which will be held at the Outagamie Rural Normal school at Kaukauna on March 8 and 9. About 150 teachers are expected to attend the institute in addition to the pupils enrolled in the normal school. The institute is to be staged under auspices of the University of Wisconsin Extension division. The purpose of the institute will be to show teachers how leadership advantages may be extended to communities and how the resources of the state university may be called upon to assist community projects. Officers of Parent-Teacher associations of the county are to be invited to the meeting also.

Speakers at the institute will include Professor Edgar B. Gordon and Mrs. Emily Greeley of the extension division at Madison and Professor Marshall G. Graff, district representative who has headquarters in Appleton.

DEB'S MOTHER IS REAL POWER BEHIND THRONE

BY SUE McNAMARA

Washington—(AP)—Much has been written about the Washington debutante, but little has been heard of her mother, the real power behind the throne.

The mother of a Washington "deb" is a combination of maid, secretary and sentinel. She stands between daughter and the toll which late hours and a strenuous round of gaudy would exact, were there not some one to stand guard over bright eyes, fresh complexions and unfading animation.

The duty of a Washington mother is to protect and advance her daughter. The social hostess of a big Washington hotel where much of the season's gaudy centers, says to mothers about to launch their daughters on the social seas:

"This is your business. It will depend on you whether your daughter has a good time. Don't expect to enjoy the season yourself. You will have to sacrifice yourself."

Most of the mothers willingly do so. Slim little daughters, having danced the soles off her slippers until four o'clock in the morning, curls up under the eiderdown and sleeps until noon. Mother stands guard over the door and the telephone to see that the precious beauty sleep is not disturbed.

Daughter's day begins at noon with a luncheon. Then follow in fast and furious whirl, tea dances, dinners and perhaps several parties or balls in an evening. A girl is not considered a social success unless every day and evening is full. As a result, her father is usually out several thousand dollars and daughter, as one Washington mother expresses it, is "a wreck."

It cost from $500 to $1,000 to give daughter the proper kind of a coming-out party. Then, there are the season's expense of dress which include many different gowns and evening wraps, dozens of shoes, slippers, stockings, gloves and other accessories. Some resourceful mothers of modest means have a fairly wide over daughter's wardrobe with a cunning package of dye. In this way, one gown can bloom in varying hues for several parties. No small item of the expense are the tickets for big balls which run from $10 to $25 a couple. It is the Washington custom for the debutantes to furnish tickets for their young escorts.

"Times have changed since I was a girl," sighed one mother. "Then it was the men who sought the company of the girl. Now it's reversed. But men are so scarce here—"

No ball is considered a success unless there is a "cut-in line" which means extra men. At the opening debutante ball at the Willard hotel a special delegation of young men was invited with the distinct understanding that they were to "cut-in" on dances. While some young men send flowers, by far the greatest quantities are sent by the deb's to each other.

In spite of the scarcity of men sometimes a girl dazzles the rest of the deb's by announcing her engagement within a few weeks of her debut. So keen is the rivalry among prospective debutantes for desirable dates and places for their debuts that already some of them are making arrangements for the next season's parties. The mother of one young girl has arranged with a leading hotel for their largest ball room late in next December and has decided that her daughter's coming-out dress will be of white velvet.

Novelty crepe and brown silk make a new ensemble.

BY HENRI BENDEL

FOR NEA Service

NEW YORK—The fabrics from which spring garments are fashioned are most important this season.

There is as much diversity of media as there is departure in cut. It promises to be a spring of multitudinous materials of unusual and interesting weaves and colorings.

The importance of fabrics of course grew out of the simple styles which are now being abandoned. With the straight up and down lines, the beauty of material was essential. From this insistence on lovely stuffs to fashion clothes from has grown a real appreciation of fabrics. Never have women thought more about the goods that make their clothes.

MATERIALS ARE MANY

The result is that there are innumerable new and fascinating materials upon the market. The soft, pliable, flattering wools from Paris, like the Rohrer cloths, are now supplemented by similar ones from other houses. Novelty flannels, jerseys with lace designs, men's suiting weaves, dark backgrounds threaded with openwork designs in light colors, silk-patterned worsteds, smooth glossy woolsens, crepes of sheer wool sprinkled with color or thread patterns, and dozens of other brand new woolsens are now available for jacket suits, coats, tailors.

Of silks it is hard to say anything adequate. For silks have gone gorgeous and extremely individual, in coloring, weave, texture and pattern.

Soft ribbed silks, varying from graceful failles to the ribbed silks from China that men's suits are made from, are very good this spring. Pebbled silks are also. Moroccan, printed cottons, foulards, figured and checked georgettes, silks with linen weaves, alpaca, toiles and lovely and unusual printed smooth silks in designs from Chinese motifs to quaint wall-paper prints are all found ready for the fastidious woman who likes her things beautiful and a little different.

Lincens, ginghams and various cottons in fine and lace weaves are used in conjunction with wools and silks for spring outfits. It is not unusual to find a handkerchief linen blouse in, say, chartreuse shade, with a blue transparent worsted suit.

The colors used this summer can depend upon one's type, to large extent.

While evening clothes choose their color somewhat with regard to materials, it is safe to say that off-whites, especially pinkish tones, greens, chartreuse, red and a clear light blue will perhaps lead in popularity.

PURCHASE WITH CARE

In choosing the spring wardrobe, since new fabrics and new colors must be tried out, the safest thing is to buy things one at a time, filling in carefully the wardrobe one has planned.

This entails having certain good looking garments as a basic starting towards that perfect wardrobe every woman wants. Perhaps a little suit is the best start on earth. Then a dress and jacket or a dressy ensemble and a sports ensemble might be the best next choices. All must be selected with care to fabric, color, design and line.

A little trim suit that would be an ideal first choice for spring is a Scotch tweed in black and beige novelty herringbone design. The skirt is twice new—first because it takes a tuck-in blouse with it; second, because it is gored and each seam is overlapped to emphasize this important fact.

The jacket has a scarf collar as its only closing and on warm sunny days this scarf falls open, showing the beige silk blouse with a round yoke and fine tucks running out from it. With this the best choice for a first spring hat is a little velvet coronet chapeau, with a flaring brim that rolls up from the face and sweeps the neck in the back.

HERE'S STRIKING ENSEMBLE

Next comes a serviceable and stunning ensemble of embroidered wool crepe jersey topped by crepe de chine. The color scheme is wood browns, with gold and silver threads making an effective pattern amongst the browns on the one-piece dress. This dress is belted and its neck binding ties in a sweet bow. The coat is rather straight line, with bands of embroidery for cuffs, shawl collar and pockets.

The hat for this is a light brown rabbit felt, with a curtain drop back. The back tapers to bandings in front which cross at one side effectively. These are edged in darker brown.

For a real summery day one should have selected a silk dress with one of the stunning new flowered silk coats. One of these is a floral pattern in dainty turquoise blue of very dainty porcelain patterns. The roll collar, flaring sleeves and flaring fullness of this coat give it dash. The frock under it is bold de rose flat crepe, with pleated side panels.

CHILDREN DRINK PREJUDICES IN DAILY MILK

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Not long ago I read an article by a woman who had lived for many years in Europe.

She and her husband dwelt in many lands and their three small children went to schools of many nations and learned to speak several languages.

They grew up absolutely unprejudiced, with open friendly minds unbiassed against any race or religion. When they returned to America and went into American schools they astonished everyone by their ability to mix. And this freedom from prejudice against race, nationality, and religion extended still further into the field of liberty. They had learned to respect absolutely other people's rights to do as they chose without criticism.

Now we can't take our children to Europe, most of us, but we can teach them almost the same fair mindedness at home. Or rather it works the other way round. It is on the home that children pick up most of their prejudices. They drink it with their milk.

They usually look down on a little boy or girl because his parents speak a different language or go to a different church—or because they are "just different."

We can talk all we like about America being for Americans; it sounds splendid, but we are only talking against time. Perhaps America is for Americans but the world is for everybody and boundaries will go. Indeed, they have gone.

The world gets smaller every day—ships, cables, air lines and radio are so many shuttles weaving the continents together. The world cannot go on hating any more than the wards of a city can go on hating.

We must prepare our children for a bigger and better future, discard the old thought and try to understand the new, and work toward it.

Don't say to Johnny, "That family is Slavish, or Italian, or Swedish, or German, or French, or don't want you to talk to those children." All other things being desirable why shouldn't Johnny speak to them and try to understand these children from another land?

But after all, these are only a few of the mental impasses Johnny builds up at home. We hand down a thousand other prejudices that our parents handed to us.

Lucky the child who escapes them.

LITTLE FROCKS FOR AFTERNOON MEAN BIG BILLS

New York—The "little" frocks for afternoon are not indicative of little bills at the dressmakers. They are simple, extremely youthful and distinctive but they are difficult to duplicate in quantity. They have little or no trimming but depend on panels, godets and folds to give them distinction.

Blue and Red

THE STYLE presented assumes importance in young girl's wardrobe with its all-around circular skirt, like the adult mode. The Peter Pan collar is very girlish and gives splendid opportunity for contrast, as sketched in featherweight tweed in beige and brown tones with plain brown faille silk collar and cuffs, with matching suede belt. Navy blue wool crepe with bright red, wool challis, velveteen, jersey and linen, make up smartly.

THE PATTERN of Style No. 2573 will interest mother, for it contains a picture lesson of how it is made, so daughter can cut it out and make the entire dress without the least bit of difficulty. Cuts in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. The pattern is offered at cost price 15 cents (stamps or coin) as a service to readers who sew.

NEW FASHION BOOK containing all "the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

Crystal Hathaway was a coward. She had never been able to endure the pain of even a minor hurt without whimpering. Twice in her life she had fainted—once in the dentist's chair before the lancet had even touched her swollen gum; again at the sight of blood trickling from a cut finger. Feats of physical heroism were absolutely incomprehensible to her.

And now the girl who could not bear even a little pain with decent fortitude was contemplating, between shudders of horror, an act which would result in excruciating pain, if not in death.

As she stood on the table in Peter Holliday's shack, her trembling body supported by the hanging lamp which she clasped in her arms, Crystal Hathaway's whole life passed in rapid review before her mind's eye. She saw herself as a morbidly sensitive little girl, desperate for love and unaccountably unpopular. She saw herself as a college girl, bitterly alone, humiliated by a failure until Tony Tarver had taken her up, forced her upon "the crowd."

She was no earthly good, she realized in her heart. A coward, a failure, a criminal! There was only one way to make sure that no arrests would follow her "rescue"—and she was too cowardly to take that way.

No, there was another way. She could go back to Stanton, confess everything to the police and to Faith and Bob.

"No, not that!" Crystal moaned. "I'd rather suffer any pain than to do that! Maybe if I hurt myself badly enough, God will forgive me for having been so wicked. Maybe—maybe I'll not have the courage to hurt myself to save someone else."

With sudden resolution, which had something exultant and almost divine about it, Crystal turned loose the lamp, shut her eyes and, without giving herself time again to suffer in anticipation the pain she was about to inflict upon herself—dived from the table, straight toward the log.

Her body crashed to the floor. She had not miscalculated. Her head struck the sharp, rough end of the log. As a jagged, lightning streak of pain shot through her head, Crystal had time to realize with infinite gratitude, that the wound she had inflicted upon herself was above her forehead, where the scar would not show. Then came unconsciousness, rather slowly, on having waves of nausea.

Crystal never knew how long she lay there on the floor of the shack. When she regained consciousness and dragged her body, dizzily, to a sitting position, she saw that the candle had burned itself out and that only a few red embers were left on the fire in the grate. With infinite labor, because of recurring attacks of nausea, the girl managed to roll and push into the fireplace the long upon which she had cut her head. Exhausted, she lay beside the hearth, her eyes watching dully as the embers ignited the bark of the log. At last she became aware that her face was wet, that something was trickling steadily down her cheek. She raised her hand; her fingers came away dripping with blood. And then Crystal laughed weakly but proudly. She was not afraid of the sight of blood any more!

WRAP OVERS IN BACK ON NEW DRESSES

Costume designing has seen the wrap-over front on both skirts and dresses and coats for many years. Now it is experimenting with the wrap-over back. This has been a feature of the development of un-even hem lines. The back breadth of material on many evening dresses is now brought across the back to form one side of a very low V decollete and continues to the floor after being caught by a flower ornament at the left rear hip. Velvet is the proper medium for such a frock.

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY. THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Tinymites hung on to the rope and Scouty cried. "At last there's hope. All we need do is work toward shore, and drop down on the sand. The Sea Man's helped us once again. He's very handy, now and then. Come on, now, fellows, we'll move fast, hand over hand."

Along the rope they worked their way, and Mister Sea Man yelled "Hurry! Your troubles seem all over, 'cause you'll shortly be on shore!" Then, as they dropped down on the sand, each Tiny shook their good friend's hand. "Run up and down the beach," said he, "and dry your clothes once more."

The Tinymites replied, "All right." And with the old sun shining bright, it wasn't long till they were dry and feeling very good. The Sea Man then said, "I must go, and I just want you all to know, I'd like to take you all along. I only wish I could."

Well, well, there goes the old Sea Man," said Scouty. "Now let's try and find those Trouble Tots real quick. We'll catch them, and then spank them good, just as, no doubt, they know we should. 'Twill teach them all they shouldn't play another funny trick."

They scampered up a nearby hill. Then Scouty whispered, "Wait! Be still. I see the Tots all standing in the valley down below. Let's sneak up quick. Don't make a noise. We'll sure surprise those naughty boys." But, as the Tinymites drew up near the Tots all shouted, "Oh!" And then they ran up to a bird. The next thing that the Tinymites heard was merry shouts of laughter, as the Tots rose toward the sky. Their quick escape was very neat. They merely grabbed the big bird's feet and as the bird's head out of sight the Tots all yelled "Good-bye!"

(The Tinymites return to their regular size in the next story.)

History Of Eagle Lodge Is Outlined

FOR thirty years the Fraternal Order of Eagles, today an army of 600,000 strong, has been a mighty shield between the workman and certain fears that sometimes beset him, the fear of losing his home or his job, of illness or of death in his family and of a dependent old age, said Edgar W. Bigelow, grand aerie representative of the organization department, Wednesday night at Lawrence Memorial Presbyterian church to an audience of 600 persons.

Mr. Bigelow sketched the growth of the organization and said the assets of the lodge are $34,000,000. He said there are 1,000 aeries throughout the United States, Alaska, certain provinces in Canada and the Philippines.

According to the speaker, the lodge promotes the interests of the home by standing guard over its members in time of illness. The insurance feature of the lodge was explained and the aerie home was described as providing its members, especially the young people, with clean recreation and opportunities to form wholesome friendships.

Mothers' pension laws have been passed in more than 40 states largely through the efforts of the lodge, Mr. Bigelow said, and he continued to explain the manner in which the Eagles have furthered the national observance of Mothers' Day.

The social work in national catastrophes, and local situations calling for relief, the war record of the order, old age pensions were other phases of the lodge's activities discussed by the organizer.

Those who took part in the program of entertainment given at the meeting were Robert M. Connelly, Joseph and Frank Doerflinger, Miss Beatrice Bosser, Mrs. C. T. Richter, George W. Lausmann, Miss Marie Allen, Miss Myrtle Rogers, J. M. Van Hook, Arnold Gast, Miss Dolores Tustison and Howard Conn.

A short business meeting of the local aerie at Eagle hall preceded the public meeting at the chapel. Sixty three applications for membership were acted upon and 34 persons were obligated. A large class initiation will be held shortly after Easter.

FLOODS CLAIM HEAVY TOLL IN BALKAN AREA

London—(P)—Floods and avalanches have taken a heavy toll of life and property in the Balkan states and neighboring countries. Disrupted communications prevented the full extent of damage being known here Thursday.

Particularly was this true of the area through which the Danube and its tributaries run, but enough was learned from Thrace and Macedonia to indicate almost calamitous inundations there.

The Peloponnesus section of Greece and Thessaly, too, were stricken with the overflow. Several villages in the valley of the Struma were entirely covered with water, and at Serres a military bakery and large railway bridge were carried away. Thousands of acres of valley land are under water.

So great is the general destruction and disturbance of communications that the Greek government has postponed the impending senatorial elections until April 14.

In Slovenia, Yugoslavia, a number of avalanches, one of which caused seven deaths were reported. Advances were meager.

SHEBOYGAN SHERIFF RAIDS ROADHOUSE

Sheboygan—(P)—Carrying out his promise to clean up the county upon his election to office, Sheriff Louis C. Tasche raided "The Red Feather," a roadhouse south of the city and arrested nine inmates.

Wednesday the inmates, four of whom were women, paid fines which totaled $608.30, the largest amount ever collected in justice of peace court here at one time. The owners of the place are Kelly Howell and Rupert Denning.

The sheriff was assisted in the raid by members of the police department.

EXPLAIN DELIVERY OF GAS IN PIPES

Advances in This Method of Transportation Outlined to Engineers

Madison—(P)—Recent advances in transportation of gas in pipelines over great distances were explained to the Engineering Society of Wisconsin here Thursday by W. Hainer of Fond du Lac. Other talks heard during the session of the society's convention were Prof. G. L. Larson of the university, and R. V. Knapp, Chicago. The meetings were opened Thursday morning with an address by the president of the society, J. P. Schwada, city engineer of Milwaukee.

Long distance piping of gas, forced upon companies marketing gas from natural gas wells, also is proving economical in the case of manufactured gas. Mr. Hainer stated Central plants are located where they can be operated economically, serving several communities. In Wisconsin there are 30 central gas plants serving 102 communities.

High pressure used in piping has presented new technical problems for the engineer, Mr. Hainer indicated. Because his problems are entirely new, the engineer who plans the construction and operation for a high pressure gas system is not hampered by any worn out traditions in the gas business.

Comparison of electric power costs in Wisconsin and Ontario was presented to the society this afternoon by George C. Neff, vice president of the Wisconsin Power and Light company, who stated that if Ontario conditions existed in Wisconsin, or if there were a Niagara falls in this state, it would be possible to serve residential lighting customers at greatly reduced rates.

Mr. Neff said Ontario has a much more dense population than Wisconsin, and that with the Queenstown plant at Niagara falls has an installed capacity for power production greater than the total possible capacity of hydro-electric plants in this state, taking into account all that are now developed and all that could be developed.

If the Ontario corporation were forced to operate under Wisconsin conditions, Mr. Neff believes, it would be obliged to charge much higher rates than it does.

Big Ulcer All Healed

"Now I Can Walk" Says Mrs. Southcott

"Here is another letter that makes me proud," says Peterson. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"It seems like a miracle, but it's true, every word of it. I know it because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used Peterson's ointment for old sores, eczema and piles. "Is it any wonder I am proud?" Dear Sirs:

"I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore and ulcer. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years and after using just nine dollars worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 9 inches by 6 1/2 inches, is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again. "You may use this to recommend your ointment to your friends. I cannot say enough to praise it." Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Londonville, N. Y. Generous box 25 cents. adv.

PRAISE AND BLAME BOARD FOR SNOW JOB

Supervisors Long Way from Agreement on Snow Removal in County

The snow removal bomb exploded at Wednesday afternoon's session of the county board.

While the report was not very loud the fact that it wasn't might be laid to Chairman Mike Mack. Before the session started Mr. Mack issued the following orders:

"We're here this afternoon to discuss the snow removal question in an orderly manner. We are not going to get excited and we are going to conduct this meeting in a businesslike manner. Only one supervisor will talk at once and I'm going to get to that."

After the shell exploded the supervisors began picking up the bits, quarreling and drawing them, pulling them apart and throwing them about the room.

The highway committee and commissioner were praised to the skies and were damned for inefficiency, carelessness and lack of preparedness to meet the snow removal problem.

At least four plans for removing snow were suggested.

Several supervisors went on record as opposing any further appropriations for snow removal this season. Just as many declared they thought the roads must be kept open.

And after everyone had finished talking only one conclusion could be drawn.

The conclusion is that Outagamie-co did not open its roads as it should have done with the money it had. The entire $25,000 appropriation made by the board last November, has been expended and the fund is more than $4,000 overdrawn.

ROADS STILL CLOSED

During the meeting it developed, from reports given by the chairmen of the various towns, that 102 1/2 miles of county trunk highways still are unopened. Outagamie-co has a total of 499 miles of county, state and federal highways.

A report from the highway committee showed that up to Tuesday it had expended the entire $25,000 snow removal fund and the overdraft amounted to $4,044.30. That figure includes all bills submitted to the committee up to Tuesday. There may still be some bills outstanding.

Of this total $11,780.70 was spent for snow fence, plows and rental of trucks. The rental money $4,363, is turned back into the regular highway department machinery fund. Expenditures for labor, oil and gas amounted to $13,902.30 of the original fund, plus the $4,000 overdraft.

On midion of Supervisor August Laabs, Chairman, the board appointed a committee of five to work with the highway committee and present a plan at Thursday's session for taking care of the snow removal matter for the rest of the winter. On this committee are Supervisor Laabs, Zocholl, Vandenberg, Powers and Tate.

Supervisor Laabs declared he felt that one of three things were responsible for the condition of affairs in the county: they were inefficient, unpreparedness or the unusually heavy storms.

NEED MORE BARN

The Grand Chute supervisor charged that the present county barns are too small to accommodate the present road equipment. He said a larger building is needed and that more men should be engaged to keep the machines in repair. He claimed that snow removal, on the present basis, is costing too much. Mr. Laabs pointed out that the rural supervisors had a different condition to face than city supervisors in that their constituents hold them directly responsible for snow removal work and when conditions are not right the supervisors have to stand the criticism.

Mr. Laabs claimed that while A. G. Brusewitz, the highway commissioner, was doing the work to the best of his ability, that it was his opinion that Outagamie-co had too large a road system to permit one man to care for it all. Mr. Laabs offered a resolution to have the supervisors visit the county garage and then we'll begin to save money."

WOULD HIRE MACHINERY

Throw away about nine-tenths of the present equipment, lock up the garage and hire private owned machinery to do the county work and then we'll begin to save money."

declared Supervisor William Power of Kaukauna.

Mr. Power advanced the opinion that private owned equipment is operated with greater care and more efficiency and the work is done with more diligence than under the present system. He claimed that a Kaukauna contractor would keep open 100 miles of county roads for less than $5 per mile and would post a guarantee bond. He said that four tractors would keep open every mile of roads in the county and would open them in 36 hours after a storm. The present garage and highway system is breaking the county, Mr. Powers charged.

"There is no system at the county garage at present," declared Supervisor Fred Sievert of Appleton. "Everything there is upset and spells inefficiency. We would accomplish more by putting the garage on a more business like basis."

Supervisor Arnold Krueger of the town of Maple Creek, a member of the highway committee, said it was his opinion that if the highway conditions were adjudged inefficient that only one man could be blamed and that was the highway commissioner.

"In order to properly open the roads it will be necessary to open the roads a few more pieces of equipment and station the trucks and tractors at 30-mile intervals throughout the county," he said. "Then all sections of the county would get a just share of the snow removal work. I believe that any further expenditures should be made on this basis."

Several supervisors declared they favored Mr. Krueger's plan.

"The only right way to remove snow is for each town to purchase a truck and plow and then have the county allow the town a certain amount for each mile of road it opened," Supervisor William Farrell, town of Kaukauna, suggested. "The towns can take care of town and county trucks and the county equipment can take care of state and federal highways."

More supervisors declared themselves in favor of this plan.

PRAISE FOR BRUSEWITZ

"We have now spent enough time criticizing and theorizing," Supervisor T. H. Ryan, Appleton, said. "Conditions this winter have been unusual and extreme and we may never see such a winter again as long as we live. The highway committee and commissioner deserve praise rather than blame for the work that has been done. They did the best they could under the circumstances. No one could have done better. The question before us now is whether or not we intend to open roads the rest of the winter and let's confine ourselves to that or we'll be here the rest of the day."

"Now that the highway commissioner has been criticized I want to the board that few of the members realize how good a man we have," defended P. H. Ryan, Appleton. "At the state road show at Madison recently Mr. Brusewitz was awarded the certificate for being head of the road department of the county with the best patrolled roads. He was first of 72. Think that over for awhile."

Supervisor John Niesen of Kaukauna pointed out that all counties in the state were in the same boat as Outagamie and that instead of forever knocking it would be better to give the highway committee, commissioner and worker a boost. They should be given credit for the energy and time they have put in trying to solve a problem that is so new, he said.

"No one should be blamed for the conditions being as they were because we haven't had such an unusual storm for years," said John Knapstein of Greenville.

Supervisor Nichols went on record as opposing any more appropriations for snow removal.

COUNCIL HOPES TO HURRY ACTION ON BUS LICENSE BILL

Instructs Mayor and City Attorney to Hurry Vote in Legislature

Efforts to hurry legislation pending in the state legislature governing licensing of passenger busses by cities will be made by the common council, it was decided at the regular meeting Wednesday night. The bill in question proposes licensing on a ton-mile basis.

If the measure under consideration is made a state law before March 15, the barrier now faced by the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. in its operation of busses in this vicinity will be removed and the service will undoubtedly be continued, it was pointed out.

On the other hand, the power company has warned that it will abandon this service on March 15 provided that the municipalities it serves have not reached a uniform license fee against busses.

Although a hearing on the bus situation has been set for next Thursday at Menasha, following several postponements, Alderman Mark Catlin, who drew the council's attention to this bill, said he has heard that the hearing probably will never be held. If this prophecy should prove correct and if the legislature fails to act on the ton-mile license bill before April 1, the difficulties alleged by the power company will not be remedied in time, and the bus line operated by the company no doubt will be abandoned, according to Alderman Catlin.

Upon motion of Alderman John Diderich, Mayor A. C. Rule and J. C. Bossert, city attorney, were instructed to go to Madison at the most opportune time to exert all the influence they could toward securing earlier action on the bill.

DOUBTS BUS HEARING

"Returning from Madison Wednesday with Attorney Keefe of Menasha, the latter informed me he had been given to understand by the railroad commission that the hearing scheduled for Menasha probably would not materialize," Alderman Catlin said. "The commission appeared to take the attitude that it could not issue an effective order remedying the wrongs the power company alleges it is operating under."

"If the legislature adopts this bill, busses will be licensed by all municipalities on a ton-mile basis and the controversy now existing between the power company and one or two cities it is serving will automatically be settled. I think the council should do something to hasten action on this measure and prevent the inconvenience which would result if the busses were taken out of service."

Claims from two Spruce-st residents totaling $112.50 for damage alleged to have been done to trees by workman last summer while a water main was being laid in that vicinity, were referred to the streets and bridges committee. One of the claims is for $75 and the other is for $37.50.

The claims were presented recently and referred to the water commission, but the commission returned them, making note that it had adopted a resolution last November disallowing them because they were unreasonable.

Holding that summary refusal would be discouraging to not only to the claimants but to all other residents who might wish to beautify their premises, Alderman Diderich urged the council to give the claims further consideration.

CITY TO RENT CHAPEL

The city will assume the cost of renting Lawrence Memorial chapel for hand concerts, according to a resolution introduced by Alderman Charles Thompson and adopted by the council. This expenditure will amount to approximately $200, it was estimated.

"In fixing our budget several months ago, the band was given as low a figure as we thought possible," he said. "If the organization has to stand the expense of hall rentals, I believe an unfair burden has been forced on the band and I think it is only right and proper that this additional appropriation be made."

Approving the recommendation of the streets and bridges committee, the council gave the Wisconsin Telephone Co. permission to make alterations as planned on its line between Story and Mason-sts. Request for the alterations was made recently to the aldermen.

A charter ordinance making it possible to assess benefits and damages against property holders according to a state law for installation of ornamental lights, also was adopted.

SCHUMANN LOSES EFFORT TO EXPUNGE HUBER STATEMENT

Bitterness Between Senate Factions Revealed in Debate

Madison — (AP) — First evidence of the feeling existing between the Progressive and Conservative factions of the Republican party because of recent campaign expense charges, appeared in the Senate Wednesday.

One came in an unsuccessful move by Sen. John C. Schumann, conservative, to expunge from the record a statement read by Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Huber, Progressive. Another was an effort by Senator Oscar Morris, conservative, president pro tem of the senate to take away from Lieut. Gov. Huber the power to appoint members of a proposed committee to attend the Hoover inauguration.

Schumann's effort failed, and the proposal for a legislative committee to attend the inauguration was defeated. It had been killed last week, but the resolution creating the committee was revived and an amendment offered by Morris which would place the power to appoint senate members of the delegation in hands of the committee on committees instead of with the presiding officer. The committee on committees is composed of Senator Roethe, White and Daggett, all conservatives.

Last week, Lieut. Gov. Huber read to the senate a statement in which he asked that in view of charges against him contained in the Barry report, he be relieved of appointing the senate personnel of proposed committees which are to investigate expenditures in all election campaigns since 1924. Sen. Schumann today objected to having the statement left in the senate record, and moved that it be expunged.

Lieut. Gov. Huber sharply replied to Sen. Schumann, declaring that the statement belonged in the record, and that he was within his rights in having it inserted there. He called Sen. Morris to the chair while the senate discussed Schumann's resolution. The resolution was finally withdrawn by its author without a vote.

Your Income Tax

No. 16

The cost of capital assets, less adjustment for depreciation and salvage, may be deducted from gross income if their usefulness suddenly is terminated and they are disposed of. For example, a manufacturer may be compelled to scrap machinery because it has become inadequate or obsolete. He may deduct the loss sustained, if he has sold, abandoned, or otherwise permanently parted with the machinery. Such loss must be charged off on the books of the taxpayer and fully explained in his income-tax return.

If a taxpayer demolishes a building used in his trade or business and replaces it he may deduct the loss sustained, but if he buys, as the site of a new building, land upon which is located an old building, demolition of the old building is not considered a loss and therefore is not deductible. The value of real estate, exclusive of the old improvement, is presumed to be equal to the purchase price of the land and building, plus the cost of removing the useless building.

THE FINEST STOCK COMPANY OF THE MIDDLE WEST

THE BLACK PIGEON

© 1929 By NEA Service, Inc. & ANNE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED
JACK HAYWARD, struggling young insurance broker, becomes engaged to RUTH LESTER, secretary to "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, promoter of dubious stock companies, whose private office is just across the narrow hallway from Jack's.

On a Saturday morning in January, the promoter has two women callers. The first is RITA BUBOIS, night club dancer, who is to accompany him to Winter Haven for the week-end. The second is MRS. BORDEN, Borden's wife and mother of his two children, who calls for him to see her. Learning he is busy, she agrees to return. Before she goes she glimpses the pistol in Ruth's desk. While Ruth takes dictation Borden makes a playful pass at her and she screams, attracting Jack's attention in the opposite office. He is furious.

When they meet for lunch, Ruth discovers she has forgotten her bank book and rushes back to the office. At the luncheon table Jack says he left the theater tickets on his desk and returns for them. He returns strangely perturbed.

When on Monday morning Ruth ends the floor near the window, she reviews Jack's strange behavior and is petrified with fear. She runs to his office and, finding him out, looks frantically in his desk for his gun. It is gone! Jack returns immediately and accompanies her to Borden's office where he calls the police. Fearing Jack shot Borden through the open windows she rushes into Borden's office to close his window before the police arrive. The window is already closed! The police arrive.

CHAPTER VIII
In the brief instant between the turning of the knob of the outer door and the entrance of the police, Ruth had time to get control of her nerves. For fear so horrible that she now wondered how she had been able to bear it had been lifted from her mind and heart.

The window of Borden's private office, opening upon the alleyway, and directly opposite to Jack Hayward's window, was closed. How could she, even for a moment, have believed her man was guilty of murder?

Her reasoning was exquisitely clear and simple: The only way Jack Hayward could have shot Borden through the window was if he had been in the room. Borden, because of his deadly fear of holdup men in his stocks, would never in the world have unlocked it for Jack Hayward, for it was his custom, she knew, to demand to know who wanted to see him, if he was alone and unprotected in his office.

The only person, probably, whom he had admitted was his wife, whom he was expecting, and she undoubtedly had already called before Jack's return to his office to get the forgotten theater tickets.

"Henry F. Borden's office?" an aggressive voice demanded unnecessarily, for the name was painted on the door. "What's happened here?"

Ruth Lester was still standing in the protective circle of Jack Hayward's arm. She looked curiously, no longer afraid, at the officer in plainclothes who was addressing her. Behind him stood two policemen in uniform, but Ruth scarcely saw them. The detective towered over her—a giant to man, at least six feet three inches tall and broad in proportion. He looked as if he had grown grizzled in the service of justice, but was still not satisfied, getting a savage joy out of running criminals to earth.

"Dead a good many hours, I'd say. Shot through the heart. Must have died quickly," but Dr. Nielson will tell us that. Stand —" he addressed one of the policemen—"put in a call for headquarters. Tell the chief it's murder all right, and to send Dr. Nielson over right away. And Bigger, you stand outside the door in the hall and keep the crowds away. The news will go through the building like wildfire, once it gets started. Did you spill it?" he demanded of Ruth.

She shook her head. "I told no one but Mr. Hayward. I went to him immediately after—after I saw Mr. Borden. Mr. Hayward has offices on this floor, around in the next wing. We are engaged to be married. That's why I went to him."

"That so?" McMann's little, squinted eyes studied the pair in the doorway. He seemed about to ask some question concerning their relationship to each other or to the dead man, and then, to Ruth's great relief, to decide upon a query of more immediate importance. "Did Borden keep any money or valuables in the office? Do you know what he had on him Saturday? Looks like he must have been murdered as long as Saturday."

"I know that he had $500 in tens and twenties," Ruth answered steadily. "He had with him a book to get it for him, as he was going to Winter Haven for the weekend. His train was to leave at 2:15. I don't know how much more he had. I caught a glimpse of a yellow-backed note in his wallet when he put the $500 in it. I didn't see the denomination. He also had a pair of railroad tickets with a Pullman drawing-room ticket, which he had me buy for him."

As she spoke, the detective was searching the pockets of the dead man's coat, trousers and vest. "Here are the tickets O. K. And some loose change in a pocket. But there are no banknotes at all. . . . Hmm! Looks like robbery."

"There have been a number of holdups in the building in the last few weeks," Jack volunteered. "Someone who knew Miss Lester may have seen her cashing the check for $500 and—"

"I'll do the math on this job, thanks," McMann interrupted harshly. "Now, Miss Lester, by the way, I'm related to Colby Lester, the lawyer."

Tears sprang into Ruth's eyes. "He was my father."

McMann's glinting eyes were gentle for a moment, as they took in the small figure. "Sorry, Miss Lester! I had no idea. Do remember the boys saying he had a kid—I mean a daughter—that he was crazy about. Now, child, in your own words, tell me all you know about this business. When you last saw Borden, everything of importance that had happened Saturday, anything you can think of to help me."

"Please, may I sit down—in my own office?" Ruth faltered. The detective took a chair beside Ruth's desk, making notes on sheets of yellow paper, as the girl told her story.

"Ever hear her voice before?" McMann was instantly alert.

"She had called several times during the four months I worked here," Ruth answered. "Once I put her through to Mr. Borden, and he told me to remember her voice and never do so again. She has a beautiful, throaty contralto. . . . Yes, I'd know it if I heard it again, over the phone anyway."

"All right. Go on."

"Mr. Borden dictated for about half an hour."

"Any trouble between you and Borden, Miss Lester?" McMann pounced.

"Trouble? Oh, no!" Ruth protested, flushing. "He was always very considerate of me, till the very day of his death—"

"He dictated, as I said, until Benny interrupted to say that an old man was in this office, demanding to see Mr. Borden. I went out to talk with him, because Mr. Borden wouldn't see him, of course."

"Why of course?"

Ruth gazed at the detective blankly for a moment, then her eyes lighted. How could she have forgotten that the old man had muttered threats against Borden's life? . . . But, oh, he had looked so ill and beat. Her eyes closed again, but she answered honestly: "Mr. Borden would never see anyone who had a grievance. The old man—he wouldn't give me his name, insisted on seeing Mr. Borden—said he had lost a fortune—all his savings—in one of Mr. Borden's stock promoting schemes."

"Did the old man make any threats against Borden?"

HEAVIER DEMAND FOR CIGARETTES THAN EVER BEFORE

American Factories Report Increased Production and Demand

BY J. C. ROYLE
COPYRIGHT 1929
New York—Cigarette business is in sight. It is growing steadily and constantly. It simply is a question of which among the leading competitors will capture it. It seems now that nearly all of them are doing sufficiently well to get a fair share.

Unless there is a marked decline in the next few months, production for the year will probably exceed 110,000,000 cigarettes. Export business is better and new factories which were opened in 1929 are now stepping up output toward capacity. Profit margins are narrow but they are wide enough to show excellent profits in the case of the leaders.

Facts now seem likely to be unchanged, at least for a time. The price was cut from $6.40 to $6 a thousand wholesale by the manufacturers a little less than a year ago. Sales volume advanced in consequence but no further reduction is anticipated.

Advertising by the leaders is more active than ever, and more effective, since the major portion to the activity is concentrated in newspaper advertising. It is also making a special appeal to women purchasers, and a most successful one. The day has gone by when jokes could be cracked about the quality of cigars and cigarettes bought by women for men. Many women know fully as much as men about brands, leaf, blending and crop excellence, even in the case of cigars although they do not smoke them. Increase in the number of women who smoke cigarettes, however, is a distinct factor in the trade.

The gain in cigarette smoking has been even greater in England than in the United States. This has strengthened the position of the chief manufacturer in the British field and has emphasized the threat that it was prepared to compete for American trade in American markets. Signs of that competition already are becoming apparent. The difficulty of breaking into this highly competitive field, however, is tremendous and the domestic manufacturers profess no anxiety.

The distinct improvement in the cigar trade shown in the last three months of 1928 has been continued this year and the outlook is fairly bright for the moderate period market.

china-made brands. Output of cigars and little cigars selling for around 5 cents is about 5 per cent heavier than a year ago. The trend is such, however, that only the makers with large plants and extensive machinery are doing well. About 65 per cent of the cigar output is produced by a dozen firms. There are some 9,000 small makers and there is reason to believe that a good many of these or else drop out of the business in the next few years.

The cigar men are taking a leaf from the cigarette manufacturer's book and are also concentrating it upon one brand for each producer. Snuff sales are gaining, there is no question that snuff is replacing chewing tobacco with many non-smokers. Production of the main producers is running at least 1 1/2 per cent heavier than a year ago.

Demand for smoking mixtures is very good, although the spurt of popularity which pipes enjoyed for a time has not kept up in its full strength. The pipe has never held the firm hold an American smokers

SNOWSHOES MAY BRING RATIONS TO MAROONED

Durango, Colo. —(AP)—Plans were made Wednesday for men on snowshoes to haul provisions on sleds into the snowbound region around Silverton, near here, if railroads are unable to clear their tracks into the district within the next few days. Inhabitants of Silverton and several other mining settlements, isolated since Feb. 3, when snowsides blocked

The success of the automatic vending machines for the distribution of cigarettes in England may have a bearing on retail sales and distribution policy in this country.

The sale of smokers' accessories, such as holders, lighters, ash trays and similar goods, probably never was so heavy as during the last four months.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with psyllin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are now without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild, gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

ed the railroads and highway leading into the mountainous country, have been on short rations several days and the food supplies were almost exhausted according to last reports.

Railroad crews had almost penetrated the snow, 100 feet deep in places, when new slides were caused by Monday night's storm.

They estimated they should reach Silverton late Friday if no more slides occur.

Shirts are being worn by constantly increasing numbers of Chinese.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. WISCONSIN LADY Finds Best Plan

When Nature fails you, try and help yourself by the most natural method. That's the advice of leading authorities nowadays; and for over fifty years it has been the plan of the makers of California Fig Syrup. The quick, easy way this pure, wholesome product relieves children of those symptoms of stubborn bowels, such as headaches, biliousness, coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, etc., and makes them strong, energetic and rosy-cheeked again shows there's no use dragging a child with harsh purgative medicines. And Fig Syrup helps give tone and strength to weak, flabby stomachs and bowels so they continue to act of their own accord and you don't have to keep dosing them. It's popularity is shown by its sales record of over four million bottles a year and by the praise thousands of mothers are fairly showering on it. A Wisconsin mother, Mrs. E. Hahn, 820 Thirty-sixth St., Milwaukee, enthusiastically declares: "My big, fat boy, Jack, is now four. He is strong and energetic and always romping. I give California Fig Syrup a lot of credit for his condition. I have used it with him since babyhood for colic and every cold or upset spell. It always regulates him quick and starts him to eating right and improving in every way."

Your protection against inferior substitutes is the word "California," which always appears on the carton of genuine California Fig Syrup.

FLETCHER ONE OF MOST POPULAR OF OUR AMBASSADORS

Diplomatic Ace and Hoover's Friend Due for Prominent Place in Administration

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington — Everyone likes the Hon. Henry Prather Fletcher, close friend of President-elect Hoover. Fletcher is the most popular ambassador in the foreign service.

Fletcher has a reputation for knowing Latin American and for being liked by Latin Americans. He also knows his Europe and his Asia, too, for that matter. He may be in line for a prominent diplomatic position in the Hoover administration.

But the outstanding thing about his personality is a remarkable faculty for not making any enemies. He is a natural-born diplomat and always seems to have had friends in the right places.

When Hoover takes office Fletcher will be serving under his sixth president. How does he fit with Hoover? Well, the president-elect decided that he was the one man whom he wanted to direct the diplomatic arrangements on the Hoover good will tour. Fletcher functioned admirably—probably perfectly, judging from the way his end of the show went off.

Fletcher is the original "career man" in the foreign service. Roosevelt, under whom he had served in Cuba with the Rough Riders, launched him into diplomacy and he has since kept going under his own momentum without being even temporarily halted by changes of administration.

The ambassador is now virtually 55 years old. He was born into comparatively luxurious surroundings at Greencastle, Pa., and always has had pleasant relations with the important Republican politicians of Pennsylvania.

He was 25 years old and had just begun practice of law when he joined up with Roosevelt's Rough Riders. He came to Washington when the corps was supposed to be filled up and 50 or 60 applicants were being turned down every day. He was among a large group to whom Roosevelt expressed his regrets.

Fletcher rushed to see Senator Matt Quay, the powerful Pennsylvania boss. Quay offered him a captaincy in some other outfit. Fletcher insisted that he would rather be a private in the Rough Riders. Quay wrote a letter to Roosevelt and Fletcher became a Rough Rider.

After the war in Cuba was over Fletcher served in the Philippines, earning a Lieutenant's rank. Not long after Roosevelt became president, he was made second secretary of the legation at Peking. Later he was secretary of legation at both Peking and Lisbon and charge d'affaires.

The Wilson election in 1912 found him minister to Chile. The very general assumption was that he would be there very long, as President Taft had elevated him and his affiliations were Republican. By this time he was a good friend of Boies Penrose, successor to Quay, as boss of Pennsylvania.

But Fletcher put over a fast one. When other American diplomats over the world automatically submitted their resignations, he did nothing of the sort. He insisted that diplomacy was his career and that he had earned his post. Wilson agreed with Fletcher and kept him in Santiago.

Few supposed that he would survive the next change of administration, but Fletcher was right on the ground. Soon after the 1920 election he had blossomed out as a friend of Warren Harding's and accompanied Harding on his trip to Europe. After March 4 he became undersecretary of state, serving with Secretary Hughes. He was an adviser to the American commissioners at the Washington arms conference and in 1922 Harding made him ambassador to Belgium. The next year he served as chairman of our delegation to the Fifth Pan-American Congress at Santiago and in 1924 Coolidge made him ambassador to Italy.

He has been summoned three times within a year for Latin American missions. He did valuable work under Hughes at the Havana congress and had crossed the Atlantic again for the Pan-American arbitration meeting here when Hoover asked Kellogg to transfer him to the good will tour.

Fletcher's frankness of speech has made him popular with newspapermen. He is bluff and good-natured, about six feet tall and beneath his white hair are a ruddy complexion and rugged physique gained from an active and athletic life all over the world. He is both polished and practical and the Fletchers have such ample means that they have been more than able to hold up their end socially in world capitals. Their residence in Rome is said to be magnificent.

Use Earth's Magnetism To Guide Future Planes

Dayton, Ohio —(P)—The untiring hands of the earth's magnetism are to hold trans-oceanic airplanes of the future to their courses.

Within a few years the human element in the navigation of planes—with its susceptibility to fatigue—is to be replaced by devices harnessed to earth induction compasses. The army has assigned Lieut. Albert F. Hegenberger of Hawaiian flight fame to experiments along that line at Wright field. Hegenberger was the navigator for Lieut. Lester J. Maitland on the first flight between California and Hawaii.

The navigation of that 2,400-mile flight to a small group of islands—mere dots in the Pacific—astounded the aviation world almost as much as did Col. Charles Lindbergh's remarkable trip from New York to Paris.

To aid him Hegenberger has at his disposal the instrument boards from the "Spirit of St. Louis," Lindbergh's plane, and from the C-2, the ship Maitland and Hegenberger flew to Hawaii.

"It will not be many years," said Hegenberger, "before trans-oceanic planes will be equipped with devices harnessed to the earth induction compass, which will keep the plane directly on its course at all times. It merely will be necessary for the navigator to read his maps, set his compass to a certain position and fly for hundreds of miles before again changing the compass' position for another change in direction."

Lieutenant Hegenberger regards

Above is Lieut. Hegenberger, who has been assigned to experiment in an attempt to harness the earth's magnetism to be used in guiding planes.

How To Play Bridge

BY Milton C. Work

AUCTION BRIDGE AND CONTRACT BRIDGE TODAY'S DEAL

South was the Declarer, playing a No Trump contract. West led the Jack of Spades. East played the King with the idea of returning the suit and catching South's Queen if West led from Ace-Jack-Ten. (South was marked with the Queen by West's lead of the Jack; if South held Ace as well as Queen, the play of East's King would help to clear West's suit.)

South won the first Spade trick, put Dummy in with the Ace of Hearts, and led the Jack of Clubs to trick 3 for the Club finesse. When East did not cover the Jack with the King, South played the Queen. West ducked, playing the Deuce; South then led the Ace of Clubs, hoping to drop a now unguarded King in the East hand. When this failed, Declarer's chance for game was lost. He had been out-generated by West's duck on the first Club trick. Where was Declarer's mistake?

THE ERROR
Declarer should have established Dummy's Clubs, without trying a Club finesse, before Dummy lost its Ace of Hearts re-entry. South should have led the Ace and Queen of Clubs to tricks 2 and 3, and the Eight to trick 4 if West ducked trick 3 (Declarer's purpose will be served equally well if West plays King); then no matter what West leads, North eventually gets in with the Heart Ace and Declarer must take two Spades, two Hearts, four Clubs.

Stops That Tough Hang-on Cough That Racks Your Whole Body

For simple coughs any simple sweet sugary cough syrup will probably do.

But when you want to throw out of your system one of those old timers, that simply won't be conquered, but lingers on and on causing sleepless nights and days of torment then you've just got to have a real cough medicine.

Then you must ask your druggist for a bottle of Broncholine Emulsion for the harder and tougher and lighter they come the more joy Broncholine gets in knocking them out.

NEW BUILDINGS ARE WORTH $1,500,000

Figures Represented Estimated Value of Projects Let in State for Week

Contracts for new building and engineering work let in Wisconsin from Feb. 1 to Feb. 8 totaled $1,500,000, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. Of the above amount, $214,000 was for contracts let in Milwaukee.

Analysis of the state's record showed the following classes of interest: $602,100, or 40 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $350,000, or 23 per cent, for social and recreational projects; $254,000, or 17 per cent, for industrial projects; and $156,000, or 10 per cent, for public works and utilities.

Included in the total for Milwaukee were these items of note: $172,000, or 80 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $17,000, or 8 per cent, for commercial buildings; and $15,000, or 7 per cent, for industrial projects.

During the period Jan. 1 through Feb. 8 there was $8,214,800 worth of new construction work started in Wisconsin. This makes a daily average of $248,900, as compared with a daily average of $339,100 for contracts awarded during the first two months of 1928.

Milwaukee's total for the first 33 business days of this year amounts to $3,708,700, or a daily average of $112,400. The daily average of contracts let during January and February of last year was $144,400.

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things: It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "du" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Library Notes

A varied and well-selected set of new aviation books has arrived at the public library and is creating quite a stir among people interested in air transportation.

"The Wonder Book of Aircraft" is a mine of information on everything connected with aviation. It is of especial interest to young people interested in the recent changes in aviation history, but older people will find in its pages much that will interest and surprise them. The book is replete with hundreds of pictures and has many articles by well-known experts.

"Aerobatics" by H. Barber, author of "The Aeroplane Speaks," is an explanation in simple form, for the benefit of the student, of the general rules governing elementary and advanced flying. The book contains a progressive syllabus of instruction, a glossary of technical terms, and numerous advisory hints. The author says the book was written "to help aeroplane and the joys and troubles of its pilot."

"ABC of Flight" by W. Laurence is a guide explaining the elementary principles of aviation, how they operate, how an airplane is built, how an aircraft engine works, and how to fly. The author of the book grew up with aviation and his knowledge of the science has lent a facility to his pen that gives his book an appeal for the younger generation.

In the first chapter of "Knights of the Wing" by A. M. Jacobs the reader will "step out in mid-air" and vicariously experience the thrill of dropping by way of a parachute. From there on he will see altitude records, fly cross-country in a passenger plane, pierce the darkness in a high-powered motor that depends for its guidance upon searchlights and tremendous range, test planes with army pilots whose day's job is to cast dice with fate, see the inside of an airplane factory, and finally follow in intimate detail Lindbergh's famous flight to Paris, and the Maitland Hegenberger hop to Hawaii.

"Elements of Aviation" by Colonel V. E. Clark shows that a few fundamental principles of Elementary Physics, when properly understood and applied, account for everything that can happen to an airplane in flight.

Practical design data arranged for convenient use, giving laws of airflow, and illustrating modern theories of lift and drag applied to everyday design problems can be found in "Engineering Aerodynamics" by Walter S. Dight.

Midwest Conference Leaders Meet Vikes Friday

CARLETON COMES HERE UNBEATEN IN COLLEGE LOOP

Denneymen Playing First Home Game Since Lineup Was Changed

CARLETON college basketball team of Northfield, Minn., will invade Appleton Friday night for a game with the Lawrence college Vikings, the first local fracas between the two schools since representatives in history. Last year the Vikes met the Carls on the latter's home court. The game is the first of a series of two in Wisconsin, for the northerners meet Ripon at Ripon Saturday evening.

Reports from Northfield indicate the invaders expect a battle from the Vikings although they admit their greatest fear is of Ripon. They expect a battle when they meet the Vikes if recent practices of the Denneymen are any criterion. A lineup that has to be revamped because of ineligibilities and injuries now is carrying Lawrence's colors and not doing a half bad job of the task.

Ten days ago the squad took on Ripon on its own court and although it wasn't returned the victor the showing was all that could be asked. And with Bigger's back at forward and Rasmussen, and with Krick coming through like a veteran, Denneymen is looking forward to one of the biggest games on the season's card.

Grapevine reports are that the Vikings forwards have found an eye for the basket and probably will show the home folks how it should be done. Bigger was coming into his own when he injured his ankle while Rasmussen showed plenty of stuff at Ripon.

Karl Laird and DeGoy Ellis have been stretching themselves at center during the last few practices and the former probably will get first call. Laird played his best defensive game against Ripon and against a scoring outfit like Carleton probably will come in handy. While not adept at counting baskets for his own squad he has shown himself handy at getting rebounds off enemy boards and getting the ball out of danger.

Coach Denneymen's first choice for the guard position will be Captain Jerry Slavic and Gib St. Mitchell. The latter has been picked to take Pierce's place and his showing at Ripon left nothing to be desired. St. Mitchell seldom flashes much in practices but shows with the best when he gets into a fracas. His breaking up of plays at Ripon and work under the bounding board almost made Viking fans forget about Pierce's lack of play.

The championship Carleton five is built around Captain Carlsch, forward, whom members of the football squad will remember as a quarterback, back, too, and Grove, center. Garisch has been a thorn in the side of Carleton's opponents because of his sharpshooting while Grove has had little trouble getting tip-offs, a handy thing for a good offensive squad.

Thanks for the evening's battle have been on sale for several days and reserved seats are being sold at the Roach Sport Shop. A preliminary game to begin about 7 o'clock also has been carded. The main event will get underway about 8 o'clock.

ORANGE BASKETEERS READY FOR E. BAYS

Second Teams from Two Schools Will Play Preliminary

A long workout in their ancient and honorable gymnasium Wednesday completed the training grind of Appleton high school for the game in Army G. Thursday night, when the Orange meets East Green Bay. A victory for the locals means continued life in the Fox river valley title race while a defeat will shove the Shieldsman down into oblivion to be joined Friday night by the team that loses the Oshkosh-Manitowoc game.

Although they were defeated last week in their start against East on the latter's floor, the highs don't fear the outcome of Thursday's game. They've got to win to stay in the running, and they've got two trimmings to take revenge on East for the last fall and one last week. It's been the Orange's misfortune that it has been going through the paces this week.

But while they don't fear the outcome of the game, the Orange doesn't look for a romp. East boasts a bunch of big, husky fellows who, if they can keep up their speed and drive can battle any team in the loop to even terms.

Recess, all conference football tackle is at center, big powerful fellow, while Daman, fullback of the grid squad and Meyers, one of the leading scorers in the conference play the forward positions. The guard positions will be taken care of by Van and Wayland Becker who also were members of Coach Riley's football team.

A preliminary game is on the card for the fans who arrive early. The battle will be between Coach Leland Delforreo's second squad and the Bay Seconds. The Rays seconds also won a decision over the local reserves last week.

APPLETON HIGH SIX WILL MEET MANITOWOC

Appleton high school hockey team will invade Manitowoc Friday morning with Coach George Cooper in charge and will cross sticks with Manitowoc in the afternoon in the first of a two game series to be played Friday and Saturday. The highs split even with the Ship-makers several weeks ago and now head the valley schools with three wins and two losses. The Orange won the first game played here, 6 and 2, but lost the second encounter 3 and 2.

FIGHT BALLY-HO BOOMING FLORIDA AND MIAMI BEACH

Southern Cities Now Bidding for Another Big Bout Next Winter

BY EDWARD J. NEIL Associated Press Sports Writer MIAMI BEACH, Fla., (AP)—The mantle of luck that seemed to shroud Tex Rickard's shoulders in life apparently has fallen in blanket fashion at his death over the entire Madison Square Garden corporation.

Scarcely a month ago the directors of the Garden organization, and even doughty Bill Carey, the two-fisted railroad builder who has taken Tex's place at the helm, argued for the feasibility of carrying out Rickard's dream of an outdoor heavyweight contest in the south while winter gripped arenas in the north. The plan, when originated, seemed feasible to none but Rickard and even he had his doubts.

It is no secret now that Tex, before he died, told the directors of his organization that the battle of the Everglades, featuring Young Stribling, the slugging Georgian, and Jack Sharkey, of Boston, must be considered in the light of his own personal experiment. If any profits were made on the affair, the corporation would receive them. Any loss Tex planned to foot himself.

And now from an entirely unexpected source comes the promise that the Garden corporation unwittingly has stumbled into a new by-product of boxing, a discovery that may prove one of the most prosperous in the history of the sport instead of a financial failure.

So great has been the advertising that has come to Miami Beach through the battle itself, the influx of newspapermen and prominent visitors that other cities in the south are casting envious eyes at the publicity that has boomed this city even beyond the exciting days of 1925 and 1926. Already Bill Carey has received propositions from cities in California and other parts of Florida, but Tampa on the west coast seemed to have outdistanced all the rest.

Carey was amazed at an unofficial offer of $500,000 from the rival resort to stage another heavyweight engagement next winter besides the waters of Tampa bay.

Both Sharkey and Stribling, close to top condition are planning to taper off in workouts from now until Wednesday. Sharkey scaled 189 after Wednesday's workout, his lowest poundage in three years.

Both Sharkey and Stribling, close to top condition are planning to taper off in workouts from now until Wednesday. Sharkey scaled 189 after Wednesday's workout, his lowest poundage in three years.

THE HARDEST WORKING HEAVYWEIGHT Young Stribling's Life Story

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second chapter of the story of Young Stribling's life written for the Post-Crescent and NEA Service, Inc., by Milton K. Wallace of Macon, Ga., a lifelong friend of the Striblings.

BY MILTON K. WALLACE L. L. A. LAWRENCE STRIBLING entered Lanier High School, at Macon, Ga., after touring in vaudeville with his parents and took up the game of basketball. Ma put her foot down, though, when he suggested that he believed he had in him the makings of a great football player.

"Football is too rough," she said. "People get killed playing that game. You can box and play basketball, but you can't play football."

So that was that, and all of Stribling's efforts at persuasion were to no avail. She had finally become reconciled to a career of boxing, but she would not think of permitting her little Willie to mingle with the rough boys on the gridiron.

Although Stribling bears an outward appearance of being any easy-going fellow who never takes anything seriously, he is quite a determined young man whenever there is something that must be accomplished. He took basketball seriously, made the team and developed into one of the greatest exponents ever to represent Lanier. He was a dead shot with the basket and played a jam-up floor game in every respect. His last year in high school, Lanier won the right to represent the south in the national basketball tournament which is held annually in Chicago, and his team went into the semi-finals.

KICKED OFF SQUAD One of the greatest disappointments in his entire career was when the school board of Lanier High School ruled that he would be ineligible to play longer at the institution because he had engaged in professional fights. This disappointment hurt him far worse than his defeats at the hands of Berlenbach and Loughran which came a few years later.

During his last year in high school, Stribling fell in love with one of his classmates, Clara Virginia Kinney, the only daughter of W. O. Kinney, wealthy Macon cotton broker. Miss Kinney's family, for several generations, has played an active part in the historical and social life of the south. The romance ultimately developed into a marriage which met with the approval of both families, and they were married in the early part of 1926. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stribling III now have two bouncing youngsters. W. L. Stribling III, who is two years old and Mary Virginia Stribling, who was born about three months ago.

Young Billy Stribling III has been taught all the tricks his acrobatic father did when only a few months old, and friends of the family are often given a jolt by seeing the youngster hanging by one hand from the chandelier. He is a chip off the old block, but Mrs. W. L. Stribling III says her son will never be a prize fighter. And it is doubtful if Stribling would want his son to follow in his footsteps.

Seems as if Young Stribling wasn't a willing subject for the photographers when this was taken—and who can blame him? It was taken just a few hours after he had married Clara Virginia Kinney, his high school sweetheart, and while the two were enjoying their first meal together as husband and wife in Atlanta. The Striblings have two children, W. L. Jr., a 2-year-old, and Mary Virginia, born about three months ago.

WIFE SEES FEW FIGHTS Mrs. Stribling, while always interested in the outcome of her husband's battles, sees few of them. She would rather be at home with her babies, listening over the radio to the result of her husband's battles. The Striblings ever since their marriage, have occupied a pretty little home in North Highlands, one of the most fashionable sections of Macon. Young Stribling and his father own a country home at Ochlocknee, near Thomasville, Ga., where he trains for many of his most important bouts.

Machinery always has been Stribling's chief hobby. When in high school the mechanical course received most of his attention and today he can intelligently discuss the intricacies of mechanics with an expert. He owns several planes, a speedy automobile, a motorboat and a motorcycle.

For a long while the Striblings traveled through the country by automobile to fulfill boxing engagements. They now travel by air mostly. Stribling loves speed, and there are few people in his home town who care to ride with the young pugilist. He seldom travels less than 60 miles an hour and thinks nothing of dashing around a street car on two wheels or brushing a traffic officer's coat tails.

GETS ANGRY—AND HOW! Stribling is really a big, good-natured kid, full of practical jokes and always paying them on his friends. He seldom loses his temper when the fun is directed at him.

The Striblings motored to Augusta, Ga., recently, for a fight and carried along a Georgia newspaperman who happens to be a bad actor when under the influence of liquor. Sober, he is a nice chap, but this trip didn't see him in his sober moments.

After the fight was over, he motored Stribling in front of the hotel and challenged him. "Put up your dukes," the inebriated man said.

"Come on, let's get going to Macon," Stribling told him. He doesn't tolerate drunkenness in any one, but realized the fellow was his guest. Bang! It was the writer's fist in Stribling's stomach.

"Look out, you're hurting me," said Stribling, but that only brought forth more smacks at him. He continued challenging Stribling, until there wasn't but one thing to do—and Stribling did it! The fellow caused no more trouble.

Boston Sailor Refuses to Name Round in Which He Will Win

EDITOR'S NOTE—Here's the second of a series of daily stories from Miami Beach, Fla., in which Henry V. Farrelly and the Appleton Post-Crescent sports writer, sizes up the coming Sharkey-Stribling fight.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL MIAMI BEACH, FLA. — The Sharkey fellow, who always has been full of mad, is a most unusual and tractable fellow as he trains for his fight with Willie Stribling on Feb. 27.

With a forced smile, Sharkey says: "I feel swell with the world. Everything is great. I have no troubles."

"I've never been treated better in my life. Even in Boston, I've never been treated as I have down here. You know, I didn't get much attention in Boston when that Maloney was the big shot around there and even after I knocked his ears off they still considered me as an outsider."

"To tell you what I mean: I bought a big place in the Chestnut Hill district. It cost me about two hundred grand and when the deed was signed the fellow who made it out signed me as Jack Sharkey, Esq. Somebody saw that 'Esq.' and started calling me Squire. I don't mind being called Squire, but some of the people in the neighborhood didn't like it. They said they didn't know of any fighter that was entitled to be called an Esquire or a Squire, but I'll show them. I'll make more dough in my racket than they have and I'll show them that I can be called a Squire."

"That's one big reason why I'm in this fight to win. I want that dough. That's the reason I'm in this business. I wasn't hot for taking this fight down here, though. Rickard promised me plenty of money, but Joe Jacobs and Mike McTigue told me about the tough time they had in Georgia and they told me I would be a sucker to come down here even if I got all the dough in the world."

"Finally, when I hooked up with Carey and Dempsey, I wasn't so sure and I told Mrs. Sharkey she had better stay at home with the family. If they were any rags to be taken down there, I wanted to take them by myself. But I found out just as soon as I got down here that I was in right with all the best people. I've got plenty of dough and if I went out with all my dough to buy a reception, I could not buy a better reception than I go here. And I'm not talking for publicity. No kidding, I'd like to live down here and I think I will when I knock over this guy."

We then burst in with a question. "If you are so sure about winning this fight, name the round, won't you?"

"No, I won't name any round," he replied. "I don't fight that way. Some of the writers say that I won't hurt a fellow or try to knock him out. I told the New York commission that once, when they had me on the carpet about that Eddie Hufman fight. They said I carried him and I told them that I was following the rules of boxing and that there wasn't anything in the New York rules that made a fellow knock another fellow out. Since then all the fellows seem to think that I'm not vicious."

"I'm not going after this guy Stribling in one round or two or three rounds. I'm just going in there to fight. But, if I hurt him in the first round, he's going to get the refiners."

"Here's the way it was. The bell rings for the first round and the big mug was standing in his corner with his back to me and his hands on the ropes. I guess he was listening to somebody in his corner or didn't know what it was all about."

"Anyway, I could have slugged him from behind and knocked him dead. And I wanted to do it. There was nothing in the rules against it because we were to come out fighting. Dempsey could have gotten away with it, but I knew if I did it I would have been murdered. They razed me out of the joint almost when I came in."

"But I don't pay attention to the razing. I'm in there to get the dough and I'll get it plenty and I mean plenty."

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

RSATTI, the young Cardinal star, is wanting more dough... Hornsby in his life story said he would have quit baseball when the Giants traded him to the Braves... If he didn't know that sunshine always followed the storm... And that 40 grand a year will pay for a new farm even in a storm... Ty Cobb has announced his retirement... AGAIN... Earl Webb, one of the best at least thirty homers for Los Angeles there... Because the wind always blows in the direction he hits... The home town boys in Schenectady call Johnny Grabowski "Nig"... And "Nig" says he didn't hit for the Yankees last year... And he says Huggins made him choke the bat... And he's going to take a free swing this year... And hit plenty... Grabowski asked the Yankee office if it would be all right to drive his car down to St. Petersburg... And Ed Barrow replied... "It would be better for you to run all the way down."

plenty and if I get him weaving in the first round or the second or third, I'll take him right there.

"The guys in this racket, who name the round and they have a pushover in front of them and, as little as I think of this Stribling, he is not a pushover."

"You know, Stribling only boxed three times in the first two weeks that he worked down here and I boxed every afternoon. It was hot, I know, but he's from the south and he ought to be able to stand this heat. It hasn't been so tough on me. I made my schedule so that the sun wouldn't be on me strong. But he worked an hour after I did and I think the fellow must need strength or weight or something."

"I guess neither one of us needs a lot of work. He's been doing that circus of his, fighting a lot of fellows that you could not find in the telephone book and I have had a couple of fights. I had that fellow De Kuhl in Boston and they said I didn't look so good and then had that big clown Christner in New York."

"And let me tell you that Swede or whatever he is was no sucker. I got something about boxing and started feeling him with a left hand and instead of going away, he led into me with his right hand and rattled my teeth every time I tried to. And I ask you, what are you going to do with a fellow like that?"

"Anyway, I beat him plenty and I could have knocked him out in the first round. Dempsey could have gotten away with it but, if I had tried, I would have been hung to the rafters."

"Here's the way it was. The bell rings for the first round and the big mug was standing in his corner with his back to me and his hands on the ropes. I guess he was listening to somebody in his corner or didn't know what it was all about."

Foster, on Baseball, Lawrence Perry, on Amateur Sports, and Fair Play, on Boxing and other professional sports. 314 World Building, New York.

If you want a personal reply enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Otherwise your question will be answered in this column. Copyright 1929 by the Post Pub. Co.

Question—Will the rules of baseball be revised for 1929?
Answer—No. Some changes of some value can be made in them without hurting them but baseball will go along on an even keel if the changes are postponed for a year.

Question—If baseball players in the big leagues are rated as amateurs golfers why is not Mary Browne, a professional tennis player permitted to be an amateur golfer?
Answer—It is hard to say, it is just a ruling on her case by the U. S. G. A.

Question—What is the average age when ball players retire?
Answer—Impossible to ascertain. No ball player retires until he is compelled to do so and that is about the only rule there is in regard to age.

CHRISTNER MEETS UZCUDUN TONIGHT

Bout Will Make or Break Veteran Akron Rubber Man

New York (AP)—The bald head and terrific punch of Meyer Wilson (K. O.) Christner, aged heavyweight from Akron, will make their second appearance in Madison Square Garden Friday night with one of the hardest skulls in the boxing business as the object of his wallows. That hard head rests on the sturdy shoulders of Pauline Uzcudun, who has exposed it to the blows of most of the current crop of heavyweights without much damage. The exchange is scheduled to go through ten rounds.

For the aged Akonite, it is a second glorious opportunity in the space of a few weeks. If he can get over the paralyzing punch that sent Knute Hansen of Racine into the discard and that came close at times to starting Jack Sharkey along the same road Christner will have at least a claim to being the hardest puncher in the heavyweight ranks. Pauline has taken it from nearly all of them but he has yet to recline on the canvas while the referee counts ten.

Christner has gained a little in experience and more in confidence through his battle with Sharkey. Although defeated it proved that he can stay the limit with one of the best of the present day heavyweights and hand out punishment while he is receiving it.

BADGERS IMPROVE WITH CAGE WINS

Tabulations Reveal Meanwell Squad Better on Defense, Offense

Madison (AP)—With four games remaining on its schedule, the University of Wisconsin basketball team finds itself victorious in 12 of 13 games this season and at the top of the Big Ten heap with seven victories in eight contests.

In their wild climb, the Badgers have improved their offensive average and weakened slightly defensively since second semester play started nearly two weeks ago, according to compilations by the Associated Press.

With 13 games out of the way, Wisconsin has averaged 32.5 points a contest, 1.4 points better than in its first 10 games, while defensively, the Badgers have allowed opponents an average of 21.9 points a game, 4 points weaker than the first semester.

In the conference league, Wisconsin has allowed 23 points a game, a record 3 points better than a year ago when the Badgers were the best Big Ten defensive team. In their first six games, the Cardinals allowed only 22.7 points a game. Offensively, Wisconsin has raised its average in the league by counting 30.4 points a game as compared to 29.3 at the end of the first six games and 25.3 at the close of the first four games.

With the five-game non-conference schedule out of the way, Wisconsin in its five victories averaged 36 points a game, while allowing opponents 20.7 points each contest.

"Bud" Foster, the junior forward from Chicago, continues as the team's leading scorer with a season total of 120 points of which 65 were made in conference competition. Elmer Tenhopen, co-captain and center, is second with 85 points, 57 of which were made in the league.

Edmund Chmielewski, the great guard, is the cleanest player, with only six personal fouls called in the eight conference games in which he has played. However, his running mate, Ellerman, holds the edge for the season with 12 fouls against Chmielewski's 16. Both have played nearly full-time in each game.

In the tabulations, G signifies games, FG means field goals, FT indicates free throws, TP is for total points and PF means personal fouls.

NEW TEAM LEADER AT WOMEN'S PIN MEET

Oshkosh (AP)—With 2,148, the Garbrecht alleys team, of Milwaukee went into first place and the Leaping Lenas, of Fond du Lac, rolling 2,072, took the third place position among the regular teams in the Women's State Bowling tournament on the Hotel Raiff alleys here Wednesday night.

The Garbrecht alleys team started off with a 697 game and followed with 794 and 657. In helping them compile the 194 count which put them over, E. Steuward rolled 135 and G. Minkley 114. The Leaping Lenas shot 620, 697 and 755.

E. Shallow, of Green Bay, and E. Bell, of Neenah, are leading in the all-events with 1,414 and 1,369, respectively. The best Oshkosh teams failed in their effort to displace the leaders.

MEDIOCRE SCORES ROLLED AT STATE BOWLING TOURNEY

Milwaukee Pounds Into Ninth Place in Singles and Doubles

Sheboygan (AP)—An eagle eyed Milwaukee punsman who thumped the maple hard and constantly for marks ranging from 198 to 279 in his doubles and singles assaults provided the state tournament features here Wednesday. He was Eddie LaPlant, crack lead off man for the Norwesco malts.

LaPlant rolled 198, 279 and 201 in his singles to jump into seventh place among the individual leaders with a substantial 678 total. Paired with E. Fox in his doubles, he contributed 657 of a 1,246 total that was good for a tie for ninth position. He had games of 212, 210 and 235 and the duo had individual counts of 413, 400 and 435.

B. Ryta and W. Prey of Milwaukee, pushed their way into seventh among the two men pace setters with 525 and 470 for 1,247. Ryta had 632 of this and he also turned in a 636 mark in his singles efforts.

Foy and Miller of Milwaukee, last year's doubles champions, rolled a mediocre 1,142 to relinquish their hold on the Wisconsin Bowling association doubles laurels.

F. Kubernus of Milwaukee, narrowly missed a high position with 657 in his individual games.

No outstanding team scores were rolled.

MEHLHORN LIKES BEING NEGLECTED

Has Become Famous Since Being Left Off Ryder Cup Team

New York (AP)—Being left off the Ryder cup golf team is one of the least of Bill Mehlhorn's worries. The star who drew so much comment when his name was not included on the list of professionals who will go to England in April to compete against the pick of the British pros has discovered that he has gained rather than lost by the decision of the selection committee.

Naturally Bill is not entirely pleased that he was not included but he has discovered the bright side—that is gain in valuable publicity has more than offset the disappointment.

Bill unburdened himself at the golf show Wednesday.

"What have I lost?" he asked. "Merely inclusion on the Ryder cup team. What have I gained? The attention of men who never would have heard of me otherwise."

"Suppose I had been selected as my golfing performance warranted. It would have meant that I was a member of the Ryder cup team, nothing more. I would have been one of the eight golfers selected to compete against eight golfers from England. My name would have been mentioned along with the other members of the team and I would have been lost in the shuffle of Farrells, Sarazens, Armours and other golfers."

"Now since I have not been picked for the team I have had more publicity. I came to the attention of followers of golf who knew me before only by name and very little of that. Golf clubs offered me jobs; my own club, Fenimore, took up the cudgel for me."

PHIL ZWICK CAN'T BOX FOR A YEAR

Former Kaukauna Youth Up to Old Tricks and Gets Heavy Sentence

Cleveland, O.—The six round bout between Johnny Datto, Filipino featherweight, and Phil Zwick of Cleveland was ruled "no contest" by Referee Johnny Kilbane Tuesday night. The referee warned the fighters in the fourth round to speed things up. They exchanged a few heavy punches in the final stanza, but not enough to impress Kilbane. Bob Moody, negro heavy from Pittsburgh, knocked out Jack Huber of Buffalo in exactly 21 seconds of their six round preliminary.

Cleveland.—Johnny Datto and Phil Zwick have been suspended for one year and their purses ordered turned over to charity following the fiasco Tuesday night, the state boxing commission has announced.

"This stalling in the ring must be stopped," the chairman of the commission said. "It seems that our local fighters think nothing of stalling a battle on the streets for which they get nothing but bruises, but refuse to mix it up for a fair purse in the ring."

ST. JOSEPH CAGERS AT OSHKOSH FRIDAY

St. Joseph Junior High School Basketball Team Will Travel to Oshkosh Friday Evening to Meet the Sawdust City Reserve in a Preliminary Game to the Oshkosh Manitowish Encounter.

Several weeks ago the two teams met here and the St. Joseph score book shows the locals won 16 and 14. However, the boys at Oshkosh take exception but as the books checked before the end of the battle here, someone appears to have added a couple of points.

MADE GOAL FOR OTHER TEAM

Forward Burkes of the Louisiana State basketball team made a goal that counted two points for his opponents in a game with Mississippi A. and M. recently.

WILL TROUBLE HARVARD

Harvard has scheduled Florida in football next fall and the southerners with the 1928 team practically intact, hope to defeat the easterners when they play.

LAWRENCE BOXER FAVORITE TO WIN AT AMATEUR MEET

Chicago — Ellis Joseph, dapper Lawrence college lightweight, today rules as one of the 135 pound favorites in the second annual Midwest "Golden Gloves" amateur boxing championships, following his convincing victory in the preliminaries Wednesday night. Joseph easily won the decision over Thomas Novak, Chicago boy, competing unattached, in their three-round bout. Joseph carried the fight to Novak all the way and won all three rounds.

Coming out at the first bell, he sent a left to Novak's jaw that put the Chicagoan on the ropes. Continuous jabs had blood streaming from Novak's mouth and nose by the second round and several right crosses scored heavily for Joseph in the third. He was as fresh at the finish as at the start. Joseph drew a bye in the second round and will meet an unnamed opponent in the quarter finals Friday night.

ANOTHER PROMOTER ENTERS CHICAGO WAR

Mique Malloy Claims He Has First Right to Loughran's Services

Chicago (AP)—Promoter Mique Malloy has jumped into Chicago's "boxing war," turning it into a three cornered battle and further threatening Paddy Harmon's proposed light heavyweight championship match between Tommy Loughran and Mickey Walker, March 13.

Malloy entered the long smouldering dispute between Harmon and Promoter Jim Mullen for stistic promotional supremacy in Chicago by announcing he had a priority claim to Loughran's services. The state boxing commission, which has given Harmon provisional permission to stage the battle, asked Malloy to make a formal claim for official consideration.

The action added a third stumbling block for Harmon's plans. The commission has ruled it will not permit the match until Walker's manager, Jack Kearns, posts a $25,000 bond, insuring that Walker will defend his middleweight crown against Ace Hudkins of Nebraska at Las Vegas, Nev., July 4. Loughran, too, is expected to shy from the match as he is gunning for the heavyweight crown. Loughran is expected to confer with Harmon Thursday or Friday.

Meanwhile, Mullen, was proceeding with his plans of cutting a large hole in the pockets of Chicago fight fans with his match between Tom Heeney, the New Zealand heavy-weight, and Otto Von Porat of Chicago, on March 12—the day before Harmon's proposed show. The Heeney-Von Porat bout undoubtedly will trim the attendance to a Loughran-Walker match because of the conflicting dates.

SEEK MORE MONEY FOR DIPLOMAT HOMES

Washington (AP)—The United States is making such progress in adequately housing its foreign representatives that nearly $2,000,000 more than the original appropriation could be spent in 1929 were it available.

As it is, a deficiency appropriation of $700,000 is sought to supplement funds set aside for 1929, which amount to $1,300,000. Construction of embassies and legations is going ahead under a general act of 1926.

The foreign service buildings commission, a house committee was told, has projects under way that call for the expenditure of $1,744,265 in 1929 over and above the original appropriation.

Funds particularly needed in 1929 are to apply on the following projects some of which have been partially completed: Alden, Arabia, $18,000; Amoy, China, $23,000; Calcutta, India, $200,000; Lima, Peru, $20,000; for the Manila, Nicaragua, $100,000, including the purchase of a site and construction of buildings; Matanzas, Cuba, $42,000; Nanking, Japan, $200,000; Ottawa, Canada, $20,000. The project at Panama City, Panama, calls for the expenditure of $1,744,265 for the Paris embassy has been purchased for $1,221,000.

OUT OF THE PAST

A LONG about the time this photograph was taken, slight wisps began to come from Atlanta, Ga., that the Georgia city boasted of a young man, still in his teens, who some day would make all golfers sit up and take notice. And so it came to pass. Bobby Jones was 14 years old when this was taken, and with Perry Adair, then 18, had just beaten Chick Evans, national amateur champion, and Ned Sawyer, western champion, in a match game at Bobby's course in Atlanta.

Jones, without doubt, is the greatest golfer in the game today. Adair, however, has not kept pace with him, but has been an important figure in southern golf for many years.

CANADA AND U. S. NEAR SETTLEMENT IN RADIO FIGHT

Report That Tentative Agreement Would Provide 60-40 Division

BY ROBERT MACK Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association

Washington, D. C. — The short wave troubles between the United States and Canada, involving the distribution of the high frequency channels in the continental short wave spectrum for commercial use, are far from being amicably settled.

Despite reports to the contrary it is believed that a tentative agreement between the two countries yet to be approved, calls for an approximate 60-40 division as between Canada and the United States when both shared and unshared channels are considered. This tentative agreement which has been kept secret pending its approval by the State Department, is understood to provide for one and one-half channels to the United States to each channel allocated Canada, or a total of 15 to 20 with Mexico allotted 25 to Cuba 20. It is reported to be entirely acceptable to Canada but it will meet a veto in this country.

WANTED 50 PER CENT

The negotiations pending since last August, were threatened with complete disruption when Canada held out for at least 50 per cent of the channels to be divided between the two countries.

In August the United States government, as then would become only a "gentlemen's agreement," rather than a binding treaty.

That there will be no veto on the proposed new agreement which in

MUSSOLINI REJECTS FASHIONABLE LISP

Rome (AP)—The equivalent of the Harvard "I" is going to disappear from the speech of cultured Roman youths of both sexes because Premier Mussolini has decreed it.

During the past two years, after a slight decline in Fascist fervor for all things Italian, the young men and women of Roman society have been backsliding in their linguistic habits. Instead of rolling out the old Italian "R" in "propro" for example, they aspirate it as the French do. Some of the most cultured youths even try to effect a lisp, making it sound something like "pworo."

It was supposed to give an Oxford or Sorbonne twist to one's make-up and thus prove one both cultivated and travelled.

REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN...?

When a tire that lasted even 3,500 miles was a curiosity? (You can still buy that short-distance kind if you pay little enough.)

How times change! Now we're exhibiting a new type tire—Goodyear's 30th anniversary masterpiece, the DOUBLE EAGLE—that can reasonably be expected to last as long as a man usually keeps his car.

And if you figure the odds at 1,000 to 1 against even a puncture, let alone blow-outs!

Only Goodyear, of course, is building such a Super-tire. And it's just too good to be needed by most motorists.

But it's interesting to look at—and talk about. And that's why we say "Come in and see it." No obligation, of course. It's a pleasure to show this Super-example of Goodyear endurance and beauty.

IDENTIFICATION

On the sidewall of this tire you will find in silver silhouette the Double Eagle: world mark of superior quality and value, symbol of that Goodyear union of seasoned experience and youthful progress which has produced the tire of tires.

PUSH REFORESTRATION TO MAKE WASTE LAND PRODUCTIVE

MORE TIMBER WILL HELP EMPLOYMENT, INCOME CONDITIONS

Welfare of State Depends Upon Success of Project, Says U. W. MAN

BY F. G. WILSON
College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin

IN Wisconsin, present day interest in forestry is not based entirely on the need for future timber supplies. The wish to see 12 million acres of cut-over land once more productive, contributing to employment and income, is perhaps the chief cause, while the growing interest in recreation must be credited with contributing to the support now given to forestry.

That the welfare of Wisconsin depends on a continuing timber supply was attested to by many of the state's leading men at the Commercial Forestry conference in Milwaukee last March. Present conditions are not satisfactory. The annual lumber cut is only one-third of what it was 20 years ago when Wisconsin was the greatest lumber state in the Union. At the present rate of cutting, the original stands of timber would be gone in ten years. Of course, there will be no sudden end, because some mills shut down each year. So far, only one lumber company in Wisconsin is operating on a sustained yield basis, so that its mills will run forever. With better fire protection and the new Forest Crop law which provides fair taxation of forest property, the great obstacles to commercial forestry have been removed, but practice selective logging for continuous operation because they lack a sufficient reserve of standing timber.

With the paper mills the situation is more promising, since they can use smaller material which means younger trees. At the same time a paper mill is a more costly plant than a saw mill, and there is a desire to protect this enormous investment in the plant by assuring a future supply of raw material. Two paper companies are now engaged in forest planting, one of these having its own tract near Appleton in Wisconsin, and the other in Wisconsin, which will be increased to 2,000 acres annually.

MANY NEW DEVELOPMENTS

In forty years these plantations will begin to supply 60 thousand cords of pulp wood annually. In addition to these beginnings of industrial forestry undertaken by substantial business interests there are new developments in public forestry.

The National Forest Reservation Commission has recently approved three purchases of land in Wisconsin, one in Forest, Vilas and Oneida counties, one in Price and one in Bayfield. Funds for the purchase of these new national forests are included in the budget, and to facilitate work in the Lake States, a new district of the Forest Service has been created. This new district covers Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota with headquarters at Madison. Purchase of the lands will, of course, extend over a period of years, but improvement work and planting should begin the first year.

The forestry work of the state is centered in the Conservation Commission. The chief project is adequate fire protection for the forest land in the state, and a system of protection districts covering northern Wisconsin has been developed.

The state forest nursery located at Trout Lake in Vilas County has an annual output of 2 million seedlings, half of which is used for planting on private land. This stock is sold at the cost of growing for reforestation, and about half of these seedlings are being planted on farms. Those interested in securing such stock can get order blanks from the Conservation Commission, but it must be borne in mind that this stock is not intended and not suited for ornamental planting, and that orders for less than 1,000 seedlings are not accepted.

Plans of the commission included a great expansion of nursery production, and of planting on state land.

LITTLE OUTSIDE HELP
Except for some federal aid money for fire protection and for forestry work, all of the funds for forestry come from the income of the Conservation Commission and are paid out of money from hunting licenses, nonresident fishing licenses and similar sources. Although the voters authorized a mill tax for forestry purposes by constitutional amendment four years ago, no such tax has ever been levied.

Perhaps the greatest advance in the field of forestry during the next few years will be made by a unit of government entirely new in the state—the county, or perhaps the county and state cooperating. This brings us back to the opening statement, that much of the present interest in forestry is based on the idle land problem.

Clear cut logging followed by forest fires has made millions of acres in the north unproductive. It was assumed that the plow would follow the axe, but settlement did not keep pace with logging and we have this vast acreage of idle land. Since much of this land has been held by the owners for many years, carrying charges of taxes and interest have raised the investment above the sale value of the land. Because the land brought no income, but was a constant source of expense, and because supply exceeded the demand for such property, owners began to drop it by failing to pay taxes. This tax delinquency has been very serious in late years. As long as such land is on the assessment roll, the county must pay out the state and town share on such property, even though the tax was not collected. To avoid paying a share of taxes which are not received, many counties are proceeding to take tax deed. Thus at the end of the 1927 tax sale, Marinette County owned 68 thousand acres of land and another 169 thousand acres were desirable. By now

SINGLE HIVE BASIS OF HONEY SUCCESS FOR KANSAS DEALER

Augusta, Kas. —(AP)—When a St. Joseph, Mo., woman presented her son a hive of bees nearly 20 years ago she laid the foundation of an enterprise known over practically all Kansas.

The son, A. V. Small, then a machinist in St. Joseph, took to bee culture as a hobby. Soon he quit his trade and became a dealer in honey. In 1918 he moved to Butler county, Kansas, famous for its great acreages of alfalfa. From 50 colonies of bees his apary has grown to 400.

More Gardeners Will Attempt to Grow Crops With New Experiment

BY W. F. WINSEY

The experimenters with under paper gardening in De Pere, Appleton, and Sturgeon Bay, were so successful last summer, and talked so much about the rapid growth their vegetables were making, their relief from all garden work from planting to harvest, and their big yields of yearly, high class vegetables, that a great many other private gardeners in these cities and Green Bay will experiment with the same kind of gardening this summer while the pioneers are making a regular thing of it.

Planting and raising vegetables under paper requires no practice. The novice can do it as well as the Hawaiian sugar cane grower or the pine apple planter of California who have been practicing asphalt paper production for years and occupying the work of killing weeds and cultivation. Since these growers adopted the new process of crop production, they have done no more work in proportion to the extent of their plantings than did the experimenters of the cities mentioned above, last summer.

In transplanting such plants as tomatoes or cabbage, a good plan is to cover the bed with strips of asphalt paper and cut strips of paper eighteen inches wide in the same manner that a room is carpeted. If the surface of the bed slopes, the strips of paper should be laid crosswise of the slope to permit the rain water to reach the hills between the strips. The next and only thing to do after the strips of paper are anchored with No. 10 wire bent in the form of a "U", is make holes in the case seeds are to be drilled in the bed as peas, beans and carrots, a good plan is to lay a strip of paper, fasten it to the ground with a plant and a row of seeds along the edge of the paper, then to lay another strip of paper and plant another row of seeds along the edge, and so on. The space between the edges of the strips of paper should not be wide enough to start a growth of weeds.

CROP IS EARLIER
Nobody knows exactly why but everybody who raises sweet corn, tomatoes, peas, beans, potatoes, muskmelons, watermelons, strawberries or any other garden product, by the under-paper process gets a very satisfactory product and double the customary yield. The under-paper production is three weeks earlier than usual and if it happens to be melons, cucumbers, or strawberries they are free from slugs, early or sand.

The paper with which a garden is covered admits all the water that falls directly to the roots of the plants. The soil below the paper is less dry than exposed soil. There is practically no radiation of heat nor evaporation of moisture and no chance for weeds to grow and draw on the supply of moisture or plant food in the soil.

It is supposed that the increased moisture and heat under the paper increases and multiplies bacterial action which results in greater quantities of plant food being collected from the air by the plants than the county probably owns or has a claim, on a quarter million acres.

FORM NEW DOMAIN
Most of the northern counties are in a similar situation, though they may not have gone so far in the taking of tax deed. The point is that a new public domain, county owned, is being formed. In many cases these tax delinquent lands are well blocked in sections where agricultural settlement is not advisable or has failed. Scattered settlement on such areas is always a liability to the town and county because of the cost of roads and schools. Many county boards believe that much of this land will find its highest use in county forests. Doubtless cooperation in forestry between county and state will develop, with state aid and technical assistance, just as with highways.

Last November the electors of Langlade County voted two to one in favor of county forests, and the lands to be set aside for this purpose are now being selected, making the first county forests in the state and marking the beginning of a new development in public forests in Wisconsin.

The importance of farm timberlots must not be overlooked since one-fourth of our farm land is wooded. The value of forest products out on farms in 1927 totaled 14 million dollars which exceeded the combined value of tobacco, canning peas and rye. There is also considerable waste land on farms which could be profitably grown timber. To encourage farm forestry, the College of Agriculture, with the cooperation of the Conservation commission, is conducting extension work in forestry. Forest planting has been the chief project and demonstration plantings have now been established in forty counties.

Add Thirty Million Acres To Pastures Specialist Advises Farmers In U. S.

Washington —(AP)—An increase of improved pastures in the humid eastern states is not unreasonable, in the opinion of H. N. Vinnall, senior agronomist in the federal division of forage crops and diseases.

He sees in the use of more crop land for pastures a chance to increase profits per acre and to reduce the surplus of corn, cotton, wheat and pork.

Vinnall arrives at his point on the basis of profit and cost. Profit, he says, is the difference between the cost of production and the selling price of the product. Meat and milk produced on pastures cost only one-eighth as much as when produced from cultivated crops. The production per acre is greater from cultivated crops, but the expense for labor required by such crops also is much greater.

"It has been found in New York state," Vinnall continues, "that the cost of maintaining a cow on pasture, including the supplementary feed given her, was less than 10 cents a day; and returns from milk averaged 34 cents a day. When the cost of labor used on cows during the pasture period was deducted from the value of the milk produced, the net income from the pasture was $11.37 an acre.

"On the other hand, the average yearly cost of producing crops in New York for the period 1923-1927 was $40 an acre; and the returns $41 an acre. The profit, or net return from crop land was $1 an acre as against $11.37 an acre from pasture land."

The low cost of feed from pastures is due largely to the low labor charge in producing it. In Pennsylvania it cost only 70 cents an acre for the labor required to maintain an acre of pasture as against $14.90 an acre for the labor required to produce hay and grain in a rotation of corn, oats, wheat and clover. To produce a ton of digestible nutrients in such a grain rotation involved a labor cost of $12 while on pasture the labor charge per ton was less than $1.

Vinnall sees in the south one of the greatest opportunities to increase farm profits by increasing pasture lands. There an interest charge of 30 cents represents a 5 per cent return on land necessary to pasture a cow for the average season, as against a charge of $1.35 in the corn belt. Southern pasture are found to add from 1 to 2 pounds a day to the weight of best steers, and in some instances affording a net return of $7.82 an acre.

Although high-priced, productive crop land is not well employed if occupied by the ordinary, unproductive pasture. Vinnall recalls that skill and care frequently turns such land into excellent pasture. An Ohio pasture, treated with lime and phosphate, produced 136 pounds of beef per acre, while untreated land adjoining it produced only 69 pounds.

usual and this in turn makes greater quantities of the plant food in the soil available to the plants than is possible in gardens with exposed surfaces.

While the mystery of the big fields under paper gardening must be a very interesting process, no one needs to wait for laboratory reports as a signal to plant his garden under paper. The reasons for big yields of vegetables is of considerably less, practical importance than the fact.

The Hawaiian sugar cane planters did not stop to ask the reason. They had been using the dried weeds that they loosened by cultivation between the rows of their cane to prevent a second growth of weeds and a repetition of the work. The weed must be worked very well and reduced to work until it rotted away as a mulch as before. The step from the transient weed mulch to the permanent paper mulch which is left on the ground year after year was a short one to take after using the weeds. The reason the planters took it was one of their own making, namely, to get rid of the work of destroying weeds.

Gardeners here are using the paper mulch for the double purpose controlling weeds without work and getting increased yields of vegetables.

MACHINES BIG HELP IN WAR ON GRAM SMUTS

Elkhorn-Walworth co. is continuing its war on the smuts of small grains.

The farmers of this county had eighty or more smut machines in operation last season. With these they cleaned approximately 54,000 bushels of grain. Some of the machines are owned privately, others are operated cooperatively.

The smut machine in most common use in the county consists of a hopper, a trough and a chute containing an auger. The auger pushes the grain up the chute and into the bag after it has come in contact with a formaldehyde solution in a treating tank.

This method has proved valuable in treating closed and open smuts of oats and for the closed smuts of wheat and barley. It has been found that formaldehyde will not kill the loose smut spores in wheat and barley because the fungus threads are in the seed germs.

A mixture of one pint 40 per cent formaldehyde solution to 30 or 40 gallons of water is used in treating the seed.

In cases where machines are not available the seed is dipped by holding it for five minutes in the mixture. Some of the farmers use the sprinkling method in treating their seed stocks. They pile the seed up on the floor, sprinkle with the same solution and mix by constant stirring with shovels.

After treatment whether by dipping or sprinkling, the seed is covered and allowed to remain for three to five hours and later spread out and allowed to dry.

Here's Stanch Believer In Cow Testing Groups

BY W. F. WINSEY

Seymour —As a result of several years of experience, Reinhold Miller, route 5, is a stanch believer in the efficiency of the work done by cow test-associations. One of his neighbors several years ago sold a cow that had not been tested to an outside dealer who knew cows. A year after the deal was made, a dairyman from the south part of the state who had bought the cow from the dealer visited the former owner of the cow to get the breeding papers. The explanation of his request was that the cow was producing 600 pounds of butterfat yearly and his papers would increase her value. Mr. Miller's neighbor who sold the cow to the dealer has a heifer of that cow that freshens this spring. If she had known the production value of the cow, he would not have parted with the cow and would have retained all her calves for herd foundation purposes. Experienced buyers of dairy cows make selections of cows much more easily and get the cows at lower prices if the owner has no production records.

Before Mr. Miller joined the Cleora-Black Creek Cow Testing association he sold a cow that he despised to a dealer for $60 and was paid one dollar down to bind the bargain. This cow was in disgrace because other cows in the herd gave more milk and she was light heeled and never failed to make perfect hits. When interviews lasted to long or became tiresome, the cow broke them up with flying heels. After paying the dollar on the purchase price of the cow and learning the reputation of the cow in the neighborhood, the dealer informed Mr. Miller that he might keep the cow and the dollar. When the cow tester came around he gave the kicking cow the highest place in the Miller herd.

Other cows in Mr. Miller's barn that were considered the best producers were found by the cow tester to be the poorest and the poor cows proved themselves to be the best. As a result of cow testing, Mr. Miller is able to cull his poor cows, keep his best cows in his herd, rear the best calves and feed each of his cows according to her production.

KEEPS PURE BRED SIRE
Mr. Miller has now 24 grade Holsteins in a herd of 35 animals. He is milking eight cows and four more freshens this week. He sells four or five cows yearly and raises the best of his heifer calves for replacement. He keeps a pure bred sire in his herd.

As hay for his cows he raises 15 acres of alfalfa yearly from which he cuts two crops and lets the third growth stand in the field to protect the roots and prevent winterkilling. He has cut one field the past seven years and last fall the stand looked good as ever. He has enough alfalfa hay to carry him through the winter. A mixture of red clover as like alfalfa and timothy, supplies his cattle with pasture each season. His farm furnishes him with corn silage and corn meal, barley, oats and mangles, for his cattle. As supplementary feed he buys wheat feed, oil meal and soybean meal, and does his own mixing.

As a side line to his dairying, Mr. Miller raises hogs. He usually markets one bunch of hogs in March and another in September. His feed for hogs is alfalfa hay or pasture, ground barley, wheat feed, oil meal, and corn. He raises all the corn barley and mangles he needs for his hogs.

When hogs are worth only $3.50 a hundred and corn costs a dollar a bushel, it does not pay to raise hogs, says Mr. Miller. Without including labor, it costs $10 per hundred pounds to produce pork.

For pollination purposes in his clover fields and orchards, for the honey they produce, and for pleasure, Mr. Miller keeps 20 colonies of bees on his farm.

The past twelve years, Mrs. Miller has been in the poultry business as a side line and now has a flock of 150 White Leghorn hens. Through management and care she has managed to get satisfactory egg production in winter when prices are at the peak. Through incubator hatching, she supplies her neighbors in the spring and summer with all the chicks they need.

FARM CHANGES IN OHIO CAUSED BY CORN BORER
Columbus, Ohio —(AP)—Surveys show that in counties heavily infested by the European corn borer farmers have increased their acreages of alfalfa, sugar beets and truck crops; that there has been an increase in the amount of corn planted immediately after corn; that small grain sown in corn land has decreased and that a larger percentage of the corn has been harvested by being cut and cut low than had been the previous practice.

Corn acreage in almost all Ohio counties was lower in 1927 than in 1926, but increased in 1928.

PORK PRODUCERS EXPECT BUSY YEAR

Demands Are Large and Animals Are Less, Economist Points Out

Madison—Wisconsin's pork producers are looking forward to a prosperous year in 1929, for the large demands for pork and pork products continue and there were nine per cent less hogs on hand in the country on the first of January to meet this demand.

But prices in 1929 can be maintained only by bringing no increased number of hogs to market, according to P. E. McNall, agricultural economist at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, who estimated that from two to four million more hogs were marketed last year than will be this year.

McNall sees a continued demand for American pork during the coming year, not only here, but from foreign countries as well. There are fewer hogs in Europe now he says, and the hog feed supply is no larger and imported feeds will tend to be more expensive. European prices for hogs and hog products with the exception of lard are higher than last year, and there is greater buying power at the present time on the continent.

There is a seasonal trend in prices and hogs will probably follow this trend in 1929, McNall believes. During the last six years, the seasonal prices have been highest in March and September and the largest movements of hogs to market have come in January and June.

COSTS OWNER $100 TO RAISE 1 HEIFER CALF

Madison—Two years spent as a heifer in the life of the average cow costs her owner $100, according to agricultural economists at the University of Wisconsin. Chronologically this period is marked by the time she is born until at two years of age she is added to the milking herd and begins to pay for her board.

Current prices of feed and labor were used in the study. The total cost was divided as follows: 70 per cent for feed, 9 per cent labor, 7 per cent barn costs, 6 per cent pasture, 4 per cent interest and 4 per cent for taxes and insurance and other costs.

The average Wisconsin dairymen adds two heifers to his herd every year, it is pointed out in the survey. His herd consists of 12 cows and every year two head are lost either by sale or death.

Records kept by 100 farms in Walworth and Fond du Lac counties were examined in making the investigation. The studies were made by P. E. McNall and D. R. Mitchell of the agricultural economics department.

TASTE OF MEATS TO BE FORECAST BY BREED TESTS

Washington —By a series of tests on care and feeding of animals and on the processing of the meat they produce, the federal government and the livestock industry are learning to forecast quality—a thing that heretofore has awaited decision of the palate.

The buyer, says E. W. Sheets, knows by looking at an animal what it is worth for the hide, tallow, fertilizer, glue, hair soap and other by-products of manufacture. But the quality and value of the meat, far more important than the other products combined, cannot be told until the knife and fork and palate have had their say. Then, Sheets says, it is too late for the best interests of the industry.

That it may be told by looking at an animal's record what kind of meat it will produce, the government and various packing and livestock interests are correlating data on breeding, feeding, and on the preparation of meat.

Tests are being made in all parts of the country and under all conditions.

MANY GOOD JOBS ARE SEEKING MEN ALL OVER COUNTRY

Can't Help Progressing if He's Any Good, Says Electric Company Head

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

New York—There are more good jobs asking for men than there are men asking for jobs, according to Frank A. Ketcham, who started as file clerk and has just been elected president of the Graybar Electric Company, the largest employee-owned concern in the world.

"Big industrial firms are expanding so rapidly today, and executive jobs are so numerous, that no young man needs to fear being lost in the shuffle if he starts out in a big firm."

"As a matter of fact, if a man is any good at all, he can't help progressing."

WATCH COLLEGE MEN

The Graybar Company has 72 distributing stations, and could have 100, Ketcham says, if there were enough men ready to take them over.

"The need is reflected in our colleges where men are trained," Ketcham went on. "When I went to college, I did not have much idea what I would do when I finished, except to be an engineer—because I was taking the engineers' course. I had to go round and hunt a job, and 'sell' myself to someone."

"Today, the large corporations watch all the colleges, and the promising young men are signed up during their senior years. Approached by different companies, they can take their pick. To be sure, they may and usually do start at the bottom, but every step of their progress is watched."

NO "BATTLE" IN BUSINESS

The opportunities are not only for the college man, however.

"In our concern, we have many men in high positions who were never in college," Ketcham declared. "However, with the practical training which men get in our colleges today, university study is an advantage."

Ketcham believes the "fighting" element in business success greatly exaggerated. Looking back on his own rise, he said it seemed to be the result of logical promotions, rather than a series of scraps.

In selecting men for his concern Ketcham said he regards a friendly disposition and the ability to cooperate and get along with others the most important qualifications—pre-supposing, of course, average ability.

"The lone worker, the man who cannot adjust himself, does not work well in the big organization. The odd genius may or may not find his niche. But the man of poise and enthusiasm, who gets along well with his fellow men—who has the qualities of leadership, finds the way clear sailing. Because there are so many departments in the modern corporation, that as soon as a man has learned the groundwork of the business, he can specialize in the financial, the legal side, in advertising, salesmanship, or whatever his particular talents dictate."

TRAINED MEN VALUABLE

Ketcham laughs at the idea that there is no personality in a large concern, that it is just a big machine.

"Look at General Motors, many another of the largest organizations," he advised. "They are reflections of the personality of the men who have built them. They are full of character and individuality."

"More than a quarter of our men have been here over 25 years, and half of them have been here for 20 years. It takes a long time to train a man in his job—and when he knows it, he is valuable to his concern."

Ketcham is most enthusiastic over the idea of the employee-owned concern. Until four years ago, the Graybar Company was the supply department of Western Electric. When the new company was formed, all the employees took stock and all the stock is owned in the company. They do a business of $75,000,000 a year.

HE TRIED RANCHING

He declares the greater interest and cooperation shown by employees is a convincing indication that it is the coming method in business.

Ketcham has been with the company nearly a quarter of a century. A Michigan boy, he earned his way through the University of Michigan by working on a farm and tending cattle. He took a flier with Texas ranching and cattle trading, finally went broke, and went to Chicago to look for a job. It was then that he started with General Electric. He is enthusiastic about motoring, swimming, sailing and his ranch out west.

Are You Run Down, Weak, Nervous?

To have plenty of firm flesh and the ability to do a big day's work and feel "like a two-year old" at night, you must get good meals a day, relish your food and properly digest it. If you can't eat, can't sleep, can't work, just take a teaspoonful of Tanlac before meals.

Mr. Edward D. Lavan, of 300 E. Broadway, Waukesha, Wis., says: "My stomach was always out of order. I was nervous and had lost considerable weight. Tanlac surely put me in good condition. Now I can eat anything and have gained 38 lbs."

Tanlac is wonderful for indigestion and constipation, gas, pain, nausea, dizziness and headaches. It brings back lost appetite, helps you digest your food, and gain strength and weight. It contains no mineral drugs; it is made of roots, barks and herbs, nature's own medicines for the sick. The cost is less than 2 cents a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist. Business Sense Needed By Stars To Keep Wealth

BY HAROLD E. SWISHER

Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association

Hollywood—"I went Hollywood and now I'm broke," confessed a well known film actress to a Los Angeles judge, pleading for release from attachment of $420, which she stated was her sole capital.

This player a few years ago was one of the "big game" stars of the industry. She drew a big salary and it looked as though she need never be in want even for the luxuries of life. Her story has started a controversy in the film capital, and many prominent players have risen to Hollywood's defense.

Is "going Hollywood" a necessity or a weakness? Is it necessarily fatal to a desire for economic independence?

"The story is not new for Hollywood," said Jesse I. Lasky, pioneer film producer. "Nor is it a new story for any other to where an impoverished person may become into sudden wealth."

"This actress should blame herself and her manner of living, not Hollywood," Lasky pointed out that there are scores of film players unshaken by success, who are managing to build up sizeable fortunes from their generous earnings.

Clara Bow offers an argument in support of his statement. One of the highest paid players in Hollywood, a girl who plunged suddenly from modest circumstances to wealth, Miss Bow lives in a modest Beverly Hills bungalow with a cook and a secretary-maid. Each week the major portion of her check goes into a trust fund which she cannot touch.

Florence Vidor, one of the best dressed stars, while admitting that clothes are a sizeable item, qualifies this admission "a $20 dress can be far smarter than a $200 creation. A $50 coat of the right color and fit can be far more complimentary than a $500 garment. What one spends for clothes should always be within reasonable bounds."

For years one of Hollywood's leading and popular stars, Bebe Daniels, likewise is one of the wealthiest. She entertains frequently in her large home, maintains 3 cars and a driver and is also one of the well dressed women of the colony. Miss Daniels has always "gone Hollywood" in that she maintains her position of stardom, but the Bebe Daniels corporation, organized to deal in real estate, is testimony to the fact that she has exercised business judgment through it all.

Pola Negri, while in Hollywood, maintained a position that deserved to be called regal. She had a fine home in Beverly Hills, a large apartment in a fine city hotel and an ocean-front home at Santa Monica. She had a staff of servants. Yet Pola Negri left Hollywood with a fortune because she coupled business sense with her earning power.

Failure to do this is what makes "going Hollywood" and going bankrupt synonymous, the conservative believe.

Formal opening of the King George's Dock at Calcutta, India, December 29, 1928, marked the completion of one of the largest and most important dock engineering undertakings in the world.

10 PARDON PLEAS TURNED DOWN BY GOVERNOR KOHLER

Sees no Circumstances to Warrant Executive Clemency for Prisoners

Madison—(AP)—Governor Walter J. Kohler Wednesday announced ten refusals to grant pardons to persons serving in Wisconsin penal institutions.

The new governor, in his first announcement of decisions on pardon cases said after careful consideration of the record in nine of the cases he was satisfied there "has been no miscarriage of justice or that there are no other extra ordinary circumstances of such gravity as to warrant the exercise of pardoning power."

"Neither consideration of fairness to the prisoner, nor the interests of society appear to demand my intervention," he said in the case of nine out of ten.

The tenth case was that of Daniel Boyd, convicted before the municipal court for Milwaukee county of violating his probation and sentenced March 10, 1926 for one to five years in state prison. In this case, consideration was on the record only, with no oral argument.

In the other cases the applicant or his attorney was heard by the governor.

"In some cases, the prisoner is now eligible for parole in others he will be so eligible within a short time," the governor said. "In such cases the prisoner may apply to the state board of control for relief and only the most unusual circumstances would justify me in intervening."

LIST OF APPLICANTS

Those denied clemency, with a brief record on the court in which they were convicted, their crime, sentence and date of sentence, included the following:

John Kunert, municipal court of Milwaukee-co, violation of probation in connection with an abandonment charge, sentenced June 8, 1928, for one to two years in house of correction.

Oscar Jacobl, municipal court of Milwaukee-co, larceny, June 28, 1928. One to five years in the house of correction.

Alfred Boettcher, municipal court of Milwaukee-co, forgery—three charges—Dec. 12, 1927, one to three years in house of correction.

Harry Barsbark, municipal court, Racine-co, assault to rape, Sept. 14, 1927, one to two years in state prison.

Emma Sigler, circuit court for Iron-co, accessory before the fact to first degree murder, Feb. 1, 1925, life in state prison.

William Charles, municipal court for Langlade-co, rape, April 10, 1924, ten years in state prison.

Earl Borgenheimer, county court for Eau Claire-co, forgery, Oct. 25, 1928, not less than two or more years in state reformatory.

William Pitschneider, municipal court for Winnebago-co, June 12, 1928, arson, three to four years in state prison.

King To Recupere At Ancient Health Resort

Washington, D. C.—Bognor, England, where the King of England is recuperating has been a health and pleasure resort for more than a century, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The town is spread out along the shores of the English Channel about 65 miles southwest of London with which it is connected by fine roads and railroad service."

THRONGED WITH VACATIONISTS

"Bognor normally has about 13,000 inhabitants, but the population is augmented in the summer by vacationists and weekenders who keep its hotels filled to capacity and its Parade (boardwalk) surging with a throng of pleasure seekers."

"The town offers recreational features for all classes of visitors. There are shaded promenades, a broad sandy beach, golf courses, cricket grounds, a bowling green, tennis and croquet courts. Motor boats are available for cruising and deep sea fishing and automobiles for motoring over fine roads which lead to many quaint southern England villages."

"The town covers a small area but its banks, stores and markets thrive on business from neighboring hamlets and large estates. Craigwell House, where it is reported the King will be a guest, is one of the many fine estates within a mile or two of the Bognor beach, with which it is connected by a road road."

LONDON HATTER'S DREAM

"Bognor owes its standing among English Channel resorts to Sir Richard Hotham, a London hatter. He visioned a watering place that would rival Bath, Bognor was only a hamlet with a few farm houses and fishermen's huts in 1787 when he tore down a farm house and built a palatial residence, the Bognor Lodge on the site."

"Royal favor for Bognor was lacking so he erected Dome House in the hope of attracting King George III to the resort. Failing in this he later entertained Princess Charlotte, whose stamp of approval brought English aristocracy to the Channel shores."

"The death of Sir Richard, in 1794, was a blow to Bognor and it rapidly disintegrated, but in 1822 Parliament passed an act establishing a Board of Improvement Commissioners. New roads were built, old ones were repaired and with other general improvements in the town Bognor again took its place among the Channel resorts."

"Health institutions in and near the city have been successfully operated. The mild, invigorating climate of Bognor is considered beneficial to sufferers from throat and lung infections. The warm breezes from the Channel are tempered with the cold northern blast which do not reach the town in full force because of the hills at its back door. Bognor has become such a popular year-round place of residence for London business men that special trains are run between the resort and the capital."

Trial Treatment FREE!

Thousands have found quick relief with this simple, free trial home treatment. In thousands of cases in his experience of 45 years, Dr. Coffee found that about 90 per cent of deafness, head noises and impaired hearing are due to ear tubal catarrh or infection.

The Dr. Coffee Home Treatment restored hearing to many people who were very deaf and relieved many severe cases of head noises. This treatment may be just what you need to relieve you and restore your hearing.

In addition to this enviable record of relieving deafness and head noises, this remarkable treatment freed thousands of people from nasal, head or throat catarrh.

W. O. COFFEE, M. D.
Originator of This Home Treatment

Nasal and throat catarrh is without doubt the most offensive of all diseases; it is disgusting and nauseates all who may be within hearing.

The constant hacking, offensive sniffling, and stifling mouth breathing—the mucous discharge, which can only be eliminated by blowing the nose or by continual hacking and spitting, is sickening to all who are near.

Catarrh Healed

Why continue to embarrass your friends, your family and all of those who are close by, when Dr. Coffee's treatments may quickly rid you of this dreadful disease?

And why let this loathsome condition grow worse until the infection spreads to the tubes connecting the nose and throat with the ears? That is when ear tubal catarrh develops and gradually but surely affects your hearing.

Hearing Restored

Dr. Coffee's records show that thousands of cases of deafness and severe head noises can be ended by this scientific home method which he proved with so many patients from all over the United States.

Head for free trial treatment and his amazing free book explaining all about it—the symptoms, causes and treatment of Deafness, Head Noises and Catarrh.

R. FREDERICK A. KOLSTER—the distinguished engineer responsible for the mechanical design of the company's product, is a rare combination of inventive ingenuity, executive ability and business and professional acumen. At the request of the Government, he organized a radio section for the United States Bureau of Standards in 1912, and soon after invented, the KOLSTER Decimeter and later the Kolster Radio Compass.

This, together with the Kolster Mobile Radio Beacon, has made navigation at sea safe even in foggy weather. In 1921, Dr. Kolster joined the Federal Telegraph Co. of Palo Alto, Calif. as Chief Research Engineer. Using the same principles employed in his radio compass loop, Dr. Kolster designed the radio receiving set which now bears his name.

So perfect is the Kolster Radio Set that Capt. Byrd selected it for distant use on his South Pole Flight.

Book Of Knowledge

Cher Ami, D. S. C.

A message was written to the American troops directing them either to stop the fire or advance it beyond Major Whittlesley's position on the Bois du Beuge. The dispatch was tied to the legs of three of the pigeons, but the birds never were heard from after they were released.

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1923-26.

Then the "lost battalion" sent its last pigeon, Cher Ami. The message was placed in a little aluminum capsule and tied to Cher Ami's left leg.

Up Cher Ami rose until he was high enough. Then he flew in a bee-line, dropped into the coop at headquarters.

Thus was delivered the word that saved the remainder of the battalion from annihilation. But that was not the only deed that won the silver medal of distinguished service for Cher Ami.

New Lake Forming at Coolidge Dam

Now that the famous Coolidge dam is completed at a cost of $5,500,000, a new lake is rapidly forming in Arizona. Backing up behind the huge barrier the waters of the Carlos and Gila rivers are widening into a lake now covering an area five miles wide and eventually to be 25 miles long. The lake will make possible irrigation of 122,625 acres and will generate electric power. Across the crest of the dam is shown the highway connecting the cities of Globe and Safford, Ariz.

54 MILES OF BOOKS IN LONDON MUSEUM

Some of the 4,000,000 Books Are Over 150 Years Old

London—(P)—The "dungeon of the banned" is the name given to a secret chamber in the British Museum which contains books considered unfit for public perusal. The doors of this chamber are always locked and only museum officials have ever been inside.

In the British Museum there are more than 54 miles of bookshelves and some 4,000,000 books, some of which have been there for more than 150 years. All are doomed to remain in the museum forever. A copy of all books, periodicals and papers with a London imprint must by right of law be given to the museum authorities. During 1927 there were 236,861 newspapers and 33,703 books and pamphlets amassed in this manner.

For those who know its secrets the museum is one of the most romantic places in London. Not every book cover seen by the visitor in a tour of the miles of bookshelves is really the back of a book. Secret doors are numerous and the pressure of a concealed knob often causes shelves of apparently ponderous tomes to swing back and reveal the book lined study of a museum official.

There are reading rooms in which the visitor may peruse certain volumes under the eye of a vigilant attendant. There are the rooms in which valuable first editions are kept.

JAPANESE HONOR KATO BY HIGH APPOINTMENT

Tokyo—(P)—Admiral Kanji Kato, Japan's chief naval advisor at the Washington conference of 1921-22, has been raised to membership in the supreme war council, composed of the highest military and naval officers sitting as advisers to the emperor on imperial defense matters.

Admiral Kato, whose promotion has been unusually rapid, is one of the youngest men to be thus honored, as he is only 47.

The Great War has been estimated to have cost $55,000,000,000.

Henry Wichman spent a few days of this week at Stockbridge.

Carl Levenknecht and Norma Wichman were Menasha visitors Tuesday.

Miss Elsie Muelke and friend of Menasha spent Sunday at her home here.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and easily cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no loss of time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about this method of complete cure without operation. If you write to Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 1232 1/2 Marquette Ave., Minneapolis, Minn., he will send you a booklet showing it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least end the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Watch Your Health If Troubled With Insomnia

Madison—"One troubled with insomnia should certainly take steps to find whether or not there is some diseased condition responsible for it. Among the more common causes are: overfeeding, indigestion, constipation, worms, stimulants such as coffee and tea, kidney and heart diseases, mental disturbance and intense study."

This was the statement issued by the educational committee of the State Medical Society today as a result of the many inquiries as to the causes of sleeplessness. A bulletin issued by the State Medical Society emphatically declares that one of the greatest difficulties with people suffering from insomnia is the tendency to worry about their condition with the result that they are denied the rest they might otherwise obtain.

"Most everyone at one time or another has had the exasperating experience of being unable to sleep, probably for only one night at a time or for several nights in succession," the bulletin declares. "As a general rule some cause is assignable for the occurrence such as noise, excitement, worry, illness or any one of a number of things but the sleep balance is restored as soon as the exciting cause is removed. Such slight episodes hardly deserve the name insomnia but they give a sufficient idea of what insomnia really is to make one hope he is never afflicted with the real thing."

"Insomnia is a prolonged inability to sleep the individual's usual length of time. This length of time varies with the individual and the age of the individual, the degree of the insomnia varies as widely, from a few hours sleep to practically none. Unfortunately when one loses much sleep there is a tendency to worry. This worry frequently becomes so marked that it is more harmful than the loss of sleep."

"The effects of a marked insomnia are manifested by diminution of appetite, poor digestion, loss of energy and good nature. All of these things in time of course can give rise to more serious conditions. Relief for the condition is not difficult. There should be an overhauling and regulation of habits, a thorough physical examination by the family physician to determine whether or not there is some organic condition that should be corrected. Generally insomnia can be relieved by following common

LEAGUE CAUTIOUS AS IT APPROACHES DISARMAMENT FIGHT

Leading Nations Still Are Far Apart on Limiting Warships

BY JOSEPH E. SHARKEY

Geneva—(P)—League officials approach the inevitable plunge into the frosty issue of disarmament with caution and considerable uneasiness.

An examination of facts available at this time indicates that the great naval powers, particularly England and America, are still some distance from agreement on the types of warships subject to limitation.

Many League officials hesitated about summoning the preparatory disarmament commission, but now that a meeting has been fixed for April 15 they hope that some kind of an agreement can be reached in private which will serve as a basis for discussion.

The United States government is expected to adhere to the viewpoint that if cruisers and submarines are subject to limitation there should be no discrimination as to tonnage. In other words, all cruisers and submarines, large or small, should be effected by any reduction.

Soviet Russia has been promised a discussion of her project of partial disarmament. Then there is the question of publicity armaments, which is expected to take up enough time to justify, with the Soviet proposal, the co-convocation of the meeting. The plan is to call a second session of the commission in the late summer.

In the economic field the League in 1929 is expected to have one of its biggest years. There are no fewer than 40 meetings scheduled of various commissions and committees, including six on economics and finance, the inauguration of the study of the causes of the crisis in the sugar and coal industries and a preliminary conference to determine the cause of the fluctuations in the purchasing power of gold. All these meetings grow out of the international economic conference held at Geneva several years ago and embody a policy of securing the fulfillment in particular concrete directions of the principle of economic reconstruction laid down at that international conference.

But the year's program of the League does not stop there. In April will come an international conference for the adoption of a treaty to suppress counterfeiting. This will update the terms of the agreement upon a common system of fighting counterfeiters of currency wherever in the world they may seek to launch their criminal designs and a common method of punishment. A system for the collection of international information about the movements of counterfeiters forms part of this League project in the same sense that the banking interests of the United States have a system of exchange of information for the detection of bank frauds.

Women are constantly taking a bigger place in international life. One manifestation of this growing activity of women may be afforded at an international conference for the codification of international law which will be held at The Hague some time during the year. The nationality of the people is one of the big subjects on the agenda.

MAN IS HELD FOR SLAYINGS OF GANGSTERS

"Murder Map" Found on Former Convict Nabbed in Detroit for Murders

Chicago—(P)—"Nosey Joe" Lewis, with prison records in Illinois and Leavenworth, has been arrested in Detroit in connection with Chicago's gangster massacre.

A "murder map" was found in his pocket. It diagrammed territory along the Lake Michigan shore contiguous to the N. Clark-st. garage in which the seven gangsters were executed just a week ago.

The arrest was made Wednesday night when "Nosey Joe" or George A. Lewis as he identified himself, was overheard to say he had "bumped off a party in Chicago." A murder charge was placed against him at the request of Chicago authorities. Detroit police, however, would not discuss the arrest nor say for what murder Lewis was held.

Philip Keywell, Purple gangster, also was picked up Wednesday by the Michigan police. A photograph of Keywell has been partly identified as being one of the "spotters" who spied upon the garage for several days preceding the mass murder.

FIND NEW WITNESS

A new witness had come forward Thursday to give the first account of what went on in the garage during the morning hours immediately preceding the slayings. He was a telephone repair man whose identity was kept secret to prevent any attempt on his life.

This man had made several visits to the garage. He was at the garage between 8:30 and 10 o'clock the morning of St. Valentine day, leaving about half an hour before the machine guns and pistols of the slayers opened fire upon the George (Bugs) Moran gangsters.

"I never saw any of the dead men in the garage at one time," the witness said, "but I remember seeing all of them at one time or another on my five visits there. The morning of the shooting only two men were there—Adam Heyer and the mechanic. (Both were later slain)."

"Heyer insisted that the telephone line had been tapped, and on previous visits I had failed to convince him otherwise. This particular morning I went there determined to give him a thorough test. I did not find that the line had been tapped."

"The only thing out of the way I heard that morning was a remark by Heyer to the mechanic. 'Well, kid, did that load get to Indianapolis all right?' he said, and the mechanic answered, 'I think it did.'"

"I never saw any other there or any signs of rum running."

FIVE BANKS TO GET PART OF TRUST FUNDS

Five Outagamie-co banks were named depositories for county trust funds at a meeting of the finance committee Wednesday afternoon. Interest is to be computed semi-annually. The five banks are: Appleton State bank, Citizens National bank and Outagamie County bank, Appleton; First National bank and Seymour State bank of Seymour.

The Appleton State bank was low bidder of the $50,000 trust fund to build an addition to the Riverview sanatorium, and will receive that entire amount. The bank bid 3 1/2 per cent. Interest on this sum is to be computed monthly.

Woman Outlines Story Of Sudden Rise To Wealth

A story of the sudden rise of a middle aged couple from the depths of poverty to a plane of luxurious living, made possible by gifts of money received by the wife from the man in whose house they were living, was unfolded in county court Wednesday afternoon before Judge Daniel McDonald of Winnebago-co. sitting in place of Judge Fred V. Heinemann.

The couple, former best workers at Mr. and Mrs. Anton Barth. The man who gave the gifts is John Mueller, 1618 N. Superior-st., with whom the Barths have lived since last fall, and for several months earlier in the year.

The action is a hearing on a petition of Fred Mueller, brother of John Mueller, asking for appointment of a guardian for the person and property of the latter on the grounds that John Mueller is not competent to take care of himself. Judge McDonald was called in the case after the hearing.

CASHES, SELLS BONDS

Trips to St. Paul, Milwaukee, and Chicago. Shopping trips and appointments with hairdressers and photographers. Cashing and selling bonds, loaning money, and other financial transactions. All these were described by Mrs. Barth. And most of the money for this sudden splurge was received from Mr. Mueller. The names of one or two other men were brought into the testimony as having given Mrs. Barth money in the form of bonds, but their contributions were small compared to those of John Mueller.

The story, in brief, runs like this: About a year ago last December, the Barths, with their six children, moved into the house occupied by John Mueller, but after they had run in arrears in their rent, they were ousted in April. The couple removed to Black Creek where Anton Barth took what jobs he could secure.

Shortly after the couple had returned to Black Creek, John Mueller, who operated a small automobile, drove to Black Creek with the intent of collecting the rent due him. His former tenants did not have the money, however.

Then Mueller commenced driving to Black Creek several times each week. Last summer the Barths returned to Appleton and moved into their former abode. Since then many large business transactions took place between Mueller and Mrs. Barth.

Mueller deeded his house over to Mrs. Barth. He gave her in all about $10,000 in cash and bonds. Likewise did he present her with a large automobile, a fur coat, and innumerable gifts. Most of this money no longer can be accounted for to them.

Before Mueller met the Barths, he was said to be worth between $25,000 and $40,000. When his relatives heard how rapidly his estate was dwindling, however, a brother instituted this court action.

NEVER SAWN BOND

Mrs. Barth, who occupied the witness stand most of the day Tuesday, admitted she had never had a bond before she met Mueller, adding that she didn't even know what a bond looked like.

"But he gave me the money and he can't get it back again," she shouted during the course of questioning. "The bonds are mine now, to do what I want with them."

Becoming irritated at the questioning of Attorney A. H. Krugmeyer, she said:

"This is enough of your cross-questioning. I've been subpoenaed here as a witness, not to be made a fool of. I think Mr. Mueller is well taken care of, and there is no use stretching this thing and keeping a sick woman on the witness stand. He told me to take the money, and I'd like to know if you wouldn't have taken it."

Asked what improvements she had done at Mr. Mueller's house, she retorted:

"Go on out and find out for yourself."

Then one of the attorneys, in attempting to find out what she had purchased on a certain shopping expedition, asked her how much hose she had bought.

"Well, man, for gosh sakes, don't ask me such questions," she replied. "I can't remember all that."

When John Mueller took the stand late in the afternoon, he testified he had given the money of his own accord. He said the Barth family was taking care of him, and that he figured they might as well have the money as his relatives, who considered him only for what they might get out of him.

The case was adjourned to next Monday.

ANOTHER COLD WAVE DUE TO ARRIVE SOON

Appleton residents had better get out all their winter clothing and stoke up their fires, because the weatherman says a severe cold wave accompanied by fair weather is sweeping across the country, and will probably arrive here by Friday morning. The mercury rose 25 degrees here in the past 24 hours and registered 15 degrees above zero at 6 o'clock Thursday morning. Light snow fell over most of the state Wednesday night, and probably will continue to fall in some sections until Friday.

Only the heavy blizzard that saved fruit trees and winter crops in northern counties from being killed by the excessive cold last night. In many cases orchards are covered almost to their branches. Winds are settling in the northwest. At 12 o'clock Thursday noon the mercury registered 25 degrees above zero.

AMERICAN LEGION TO SPONSOR FIVE DAY CHAUTAUQUA

Central Community Chautauqua System to Furnish Elaborate Program

The Oney Johnston post of the American legion will sponsor a five day chautauqua here in July. James H. Balliet, commander of the post announced Thursday.

The Central Community Chautauqua system, with headquarters in Indianapolis, an organization that has been playing the midwest successively for 15 years, will bring the entire organization to Appleton for a five day stay. In addition to the programs there will be special work for children every morning, under the direction of trained playground leader.

It will be the first chautauqua to play here for 10 years and many have felt that the time is ripe for a revival of this form of entertainment that is featuring the country's summer entertainment programs everywhere as the outstanding highlight of the season, according to Mr. Balliet.

The Central Community Chautauqua system, through which the Legionnaires are negotiating, will furnish the complete equipment and talent for staging the assembly. A huge tent will be erected in a convenient location and all the ballyhoos that comes with a chautauqua will be an incident here.

No date has been set but it is expected it will be held during the second week in July.

The week's program will include varied and proven attractions, including inspirational and informative lectures, musical organizations with national reputations in concert, novelty and operatic types, dramatic companies presenting current worthwhile dramatic hits with New York and Chicago casts touring the country for the summer.

Besides all this the juvenile activities will embrace Junior Town with its own mayor and city government, a children's pageant, a Youth Achievement Exposition, parade, picnic, games, songs, stunts, and many other new things planned especially for the youngsters.

In order to insure the success of the project in Appleton, the legion is launching a drive for advance reservations of season tickets, and a small crew of organizers is in the city to cooperate with the post's committee in canvassing the community and listing the ticket requirements. The committee wishes to emphasize that no one will be asked to buy tickets now; reservations are merely being made at this time for delivery next summer, according to Mr. Balliet.

INDUSTRY TENDS TO PROTECT NATURAL RESOURCES ITSELF

Fact is Brought Out by Address at Engineers Meeting in New York

BY LEMUEL PARTON

Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association
New York—Industry tends to fend off governmental moves toward conservation and establish its own economic protection over natural resources. This is one fact to be elicited out of the mill run of addresses and discussions of the American Institute of Mining and Metal and Metalurgical Engineers holding its one hundred and thirty seventh annual meeting here this week. Simultaneously the institute unveils a bust of Herbert Hoover and D. F. Hewitt of the United States geological survey, deprecates the "obnoxious" controls of a democracy over mineral resources, declares his opposition to governmental controls and sets up as the background of his address, the European method of establishing cartels and understandings. This is but a casual suggestion by Mr. Hewitt, but in informal discussion and in other addresses, the picture of a new economic—as contrasted to political—control was clearly outlined.

NO HARMONY

In the past the technicians and the bankers have been somewhat at odds because the chemists talked about salt. This convention is unique, as it suggests at least the beginning of a rapprochement between the industrial and financial establishments with the main pattern of discussion showing an alert concern over the necessity of beating the politicians to the conservation issue.

Carl Snyder of the federal reserve bank of New York, delivered an address touching on the overlapping problems of production and finance. James A. Vosey of the Carter Oil company, a member of a committee of nine, appointed by the American Bar Association, the federal conservation commission and the American Petroleum Institute, spoke on the subject, "May the American petroleum industry through voluntary action control its production?"

DISCUSS ACT

The Sherman Act which has figured prominently in past discussion of cartels and its attempts to establish them, was the subject of an address by W. H. Hamilton of the law faculty of Yale University.

There was a hint of deep significance in the new financial, legal and economic ramifications of the discussions, coming at a time when an engineer president, who has frankly indicated his dislike of too much governmental paternalism, is awaiting inauguration. The composite picture outlined by the addresses, which frankly admit the necessity of oil and mineral conservation, is an industrial control of production, which will on its own account and without the aid of federal regulation, take a long range view of resources and dish them out, with reasonable profit to the industry and with a judicious eye on the future.

There among the delegates an apparent real concern over the rapid depletion of ferrous metals. The most important remaining supplies, in China and South Africa, are too far away from markets and present mining and fluxing problems to make them of much immediate account, although the United States Steel corporation has vast holdings in China and has the Scott Iron Works, in San Francisco, ready for operation.

ERRATIC DEMANDS

While the official discussion points to the necessity of conservation of non-ferrous metals, contradictory elements appear in the complications arising from changing and erratic industrial demands and the admitted fact that many of these metals are available in almost endless quantity. It is pointed out that there is enough copper blocked out to run the world for 28 years; that Ontario alone could almost supply the entire world; South American mines could almost double the world output. Prices stay up, not because of shortage of supply, but because of the expense and difficulty of refining.

The supply of lead is abundant but the demand is less. Vast amounts of zinc have been lost because, being refractory it could not be refined without the sacrifice of more precious metals. During England's great tin boom, investors made as high as 70 per cent. Although it is now mined with greater efficiency by the use of great dredges, decreasing use has made them lucky to get six per cent. Nickel is prospering because of the auto industry but the development of chrome as a plating is dealing it some stiff jolts and about 90 per cent of the world supply is controlled by one firm. There is more silver in sight than the world will ever be able to use. These details are noted as signposts along the road of a closer integration of technical and financial elements, emphasized at the convention. The new mass production era, spawning inventions and stimulating new desires is rapidly fusing many problems of producing and financing which hitherto were separate.

A favorite philosophy of desert rat and prospectors which this onlooker frequently has heard them discuss, is that God allows precious metals to be discovered only as they may be needed. They cite the fact that precious metals have been virtually the same, since the beginning of history and that none has ever become worthless through over-supply.

SEEK INFORMATION ON VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

The success of Appleton vocational school and the night school during past years has prompted the chamber of commerce at Kaukauna, Ill., to write Appleton chamber for general information about the institution. A letter making the request was received recently by Kenneth H. Corbett, secretary of Appleton chamber and he is compiling available information of the legal set-up of the school and how it is financed.

Nearly Mad With Rheumatic Pains!

"Nearly every day, especially in damp weather, I suffered terribly from shooting pains and sharp twinges in my arms and legs. Nothing gave me any relief and at times I thought I would go mad. When I tried 'St. Jacob's Oil' it was with no hope at all. The very first application brought relief and I have had perfect comfort since."

Good old "St. Jacob's Oil" certainly does relieve me the pains and aches of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuritis, Lumbago and Neuralgia. This soothing, penetrating oil seems to reach right in through the pores and draw out all the pain and ache. And there is no burning of the skin. Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacob's Oil" at your druggist and try it out on any pain, ache, sprain or swelling.
